

CONTENTS

	Foreword by An-Na'im	x
	Acknowledgements	xviii
1	Introduction: The Challenge of Human Rights Implementation	1
1.1	Introduction	1
1.2	Countering Legalism, State-Centricity and Cultural Disconnect	7
1.3	Terminology, Methodology and Case Study	14
1.3.1	Why Islam, Indonesia and Women's Reproductive Rights?	16
1.3.2	Structure of the Book	19
2	Human Rights and Their Cultural Connection	21
2.1	Introduction	21
2.2	Human Rights and Their History of Cultural Critiques	23
2.2.1	Founding a Universal System of Human Rights: The UDHR	23
2.2.2	Continued Cultural Challenges to Universality	29
2.2.3	International Human Rights Today	35
2.3	Culturally Sensitive Approaches to Human Rights Implementation	41
2.3.1	Need and Scope for Cultural Sensitivity in Human Rights Implementation	42
2.3.2	Reducing Reliance upon State Law	44
2.3.3	Home-Grown Human Rights Solutions	48
2.3.4	Utilising Culture's Dynamism and Contestation to Advance Human Rights	54
2.3.5	Effectiveness of Culturally Sensitive Approaches to Implementation	58
2.4	Conclusion: Human Rights and Their Cultural Connection	61

- 3 Domestic Implementation of International Human Rights Treaties: Legislative and Other Effective Measures 64
- 3.1 Introduction 64
- 3.2 UN Human Rights Treaties and State Discretion in Implementation Measures 66
- 3.2.1 State Discretion in International Law 67
- 3.2.2 Preference for Domestic Legal Incorporation 71
- 3.2.3 Legalisation of Human Rights 76
- 3.2.4 Other Measures for Implementing Human Rights 80
- 3.2.5 Other Measures of Implementation: Permitted but Peripheral 87
- 3.3 UN Human Rights Treaty Bodies and Other Measures of Implementation 88
- 3.3.1 UN Treaty Bodies' Reporting Guidelines 90
- 3.3.2 UN Treaty Bodies' Concluding Observations 94
- 3.3.3 UN Treaty Bodies and Other Measures: Always an Afterthought? 108
- 3.4 Conclusions: Legislative and Other Effective Implementation Measures 111
- 4 Domestic Implementation of International Human Rights Treaties: The Role of Public and Private Actors 114
- 4.1 Introduction 114
- 4.2 The State versus Everyone Else: Unhelpful Dichotomies in Human Rights 116
- 4.3 NSAs: Human Rights Responsibilities and (Indirect) Obligations 120
- 4.3.1 NSAs' Obligations and Responsibilities under UN Declarations and Principles 121
- 4.3.2 NSAs' Obligations and Responsibilities under UN Human Rights Treaties 125
- 4.3.3 Hide and Seek: NSAs' Human Rights Responsibilities and Obligations 141
- 4.4 Privatising Human Rights Implementation and Shifting Obligations 143
- 4.4.1 Privatisation of Healthcare and International Human Rights Law 145
- 4.4.2 Privatising Health: Shifting State Obligations from Fulfilling to Protecting 148
- 4.4.3 Privatising Health: Shifting NSAs' Obligations from National to International? 153
- 4.4.4 Privatising Rights Implementation: A Delicate Balance 158
- 4.5 Conclusions: Public and Private Actors in Domestic Implementation 160

5	Role of Islamic Law and Institutions in Implementing Women's Right to Family Planning in Indonesia	164
5.1	Introduction	164
5.1.1	Research Design and Structure	167
5.2	Right to Reproductive Health under International Law and in Indonesia	168
5.2.1	Reproductive Health and the Right to Family Planning under International Law	170
5.2.2	Reproductive Health and the Right to Family Planning in Indonesia	180
5.2.3	Reproductive Rights in International Law and Indonesia: A Community Concern	202
5.3	Family Planning, Islamic Law and Institutions in Indonesia	205
5.3.1	Abridged Introduction to Islamic Law	206
5.3.2	Islamic Law and Institutions in Indonesia	210
5.3.3	Role of Islamic Law and Institutions in Indonesia's Family Planning Programme	215
5.3.4	Pursuing Reproductive and Other Women's Rights through Islam	225
5.3.5	Family Planning in Indonesia: Islam As a Master Key?	246
5.4	Reproductive Rights, Islam, Indonesia and the UN Human Rights Treaty Bodies	250
5.4.1	Indonesia's Use of Social Institutions: Compliant with International Law?	250
5.4.2	UN Treaty Body Recommendations to Indonesia on Reproductive Rights	253
5.4.3	UN Treaty Bodies and Social Institutions: A Missed Opportunity	261
5.5	Conclusions: Role of Islamic Law and Institutions in Implementing Women's Right to Family Planning in Indonesia	263
6	Conclusions: Social Institutions and the Future of Domestic Human Rights Implementation	268
6.1	Introduction	268
6.2	Connecting Rights to Communities: In Search of Better Narratives	270
6.3	All the Tools in the Toolbox: Rejecting Legalism in Implementation	276
6.4	Going beyond State-Centricity in Human Rights	281
6.5	Recommendations (or Where to Next?)	287
	Select Bibliography	293
	Index	312