

Contents

List of Illustrations	page vii
Notes on Contributors	viii
Acknowledgements	xii
A Note on the Text	xiii
Introduction Simon Smith and Emma Whipday	I
PART I PLAYERS Simon Smith and Emma Whipday	13
1 Shakespeare's Motists Natasha Korda	18
2 'Thou Look'st Pale': Narrating Blanching and Blushing on the Early Modern Stage Emma Whipday	37
3 Emotions, Gesture, and Race in the Early Modern Playhouse Farah Karim-Cooper	57
4 The Girl Player, the Virgin Mary, and Romeo and Juliet Deanne Williams	77
PART II PLAYGOERS Simon Smith and Emma Whipday	99
5 Playgoing, Apprenticeship, and Profit: Francis Quicksilver, Goldsmith, and Richard Meighen, Stationer Lucy Munro	104

vi	Contents
6	Rethinking Early Modern Playgoing, Pleasure, and Judgement Simon Smith	122
7	'Art Hath an Enemy Cal'd Ignorance': The Prodigal Industry of Early Modern Playwrighting Jeremy Lopez	142
8	Early Modern Drama Out of Order: Chronology, Originality, and Audience Expectations Eoin Price	161
	PART III PLAYHOUSES Simon Smith and Emma Whipday	181
9	'Theatre' and 'Play+House': Naming Spaces in the Time of Shakespeare Tiffany Stern	186
10	'[T]hough Ram Alley Stinks with Cooks and Ale / Yet Say There's Many a Worthy Lawyer's Chamber / Butts upon Ram Alley': An Innsman Goes to the Playhouse Jackie Watson	205
11	Playing with the Audience in Othello Stephen Purcell	223
12	'All Their Minds Transfigured So Together': The Imagination at the Elizabethan Playhouse Helen Hackett	242
	Bibliography	262
	Index	277