

CONTENTS

List of Figures	page viii
Table	ix
Preface	xi

Introduction: From Inner Experience to the Self-Formation of Psychological Persons 1

PART I The Appearing Self

1	Inner Sense as the Faculty for Inner Receptivity	17
2	Temporal Consciousness and Inner Perception	43

PART II Self-Consciousness and the “I” of the Understanding

3	The Form of Reflexivity and the Expression “I think”	83
4	The Conditions of Self-Reference	130

PART III The Human Person and the Demands of Reason

5	The Guiding Thread of Inner Experience	171
6	The Demands of Theoretical Reason and Self-Knowledge	217
7	The Demands of Practical Reason and Self-Formation	251

Epilogue: Individuality and Wholeness 277

Bibliography	280
Index	298