

Persian Historiography across Empires

Persian served as one of the primary languages of historical writing over the period of the early modern Islamic empires of the Ottomans, Safavids, and Mughals. Historians writing under these empires read and cited each other's works, some moving from one empire to another, writing under different rival dynasties at various points in time. Emphasizing the importance of looking beyond the confines of political boundaries in studying this phenomenon, Sholeh A. Quinn employs a variety of historiographical approaches to draw attention to the importance of placing these histories within not only their historical context but also their historiographical context.

This comparative study of Persian historiography from the sixteenth to the seventeenth centuries presents in-depth case analyses alongside a wide array of primary sources written under the Ottomans, Safavids, and Mughals to illustrate that Persian historiography during this era was part of an extensive universe of literary-historical writing.

SHOLEH A. QUINN is Associate Professor of History at the University of California, Merced. She is the author of Historical Writing during the Reign of Shah 'Abbas: Ideology, Imitation, and Legitimacy in Safavid Chronicles (2000) and Shah Abbas: The King Who Refashioned Iran (2015). She co-edited History and Historiography of Post-Mongol Central Asia and the Middle East: Studies in Honor of John E. Woods (2006).

Acknowledgments

This book has been a long time in the making, and it would not have been possible for me to complete it without a great deal of support and assistance from family, friends, and colleagues. I am grateful to Necati Alkan, Susan Amussen, Ali Anooshahr, Sussan Babaie, Shahzad Bashir, Jennifer Berry, Evrim Binbaş, Aditi Chandra, Ferenc Csirkés, Devin DeWeese, Novin Doostdar, Massumeh Farhad, Kioumars Ghereghlou, Mana Kia, Nobuaki Kondo, Paul Losensky, Louise Marlow, Charles Melville, Firuza Melville, Colin Mitchell, Ruth Mostern, Judith Pfeiffer, Kaya Şahin, Hamid Samandari, Ron Sela, Tunç Şen, Marta Simidchieva, Sunil Sharma, Tilmann Trausch, Audrey Truschke, and Ernest Tucker for their assistance with various aspects of this project.

Many thanks to Maria Marsh, Daniel Brown, Atifa Jiwa, Thomas Haynes, and the team at Cambridge University Press, and Vinithan Sethumadhavan and his team at SPi Global for all of their assistance in helping this project reach completion. I am grateful to Pierke Bosschieter for preparing the Index. The three anonymous reviewers of my manuscript made many helpful comments and suggestions for improvement, and I am very thankful to them for their time and expertise. I take full responsibility, of course, for all errors and oversights.

I thank the University of California (UC) Merced Center for the Humanities and the UC Merced Faculty Senate Grant Program for providing research support for this project. UC Merced is a very special place. My distinguished colleagues in the Interdisciplinary Humanities Graduate Group, and the History and Critical Race and Ethnic Studies Department have always been very encouraging and supportive. The remarkable students at UC Merced, past and present, graduate and undergraduate, have been a constant source of inspiration.

My professor and friend, John Woods, has always provided me with wonderful advice and generously shared with me his vast knowledge of the Persianate world. Thank you so much.

The love and support from my family continues to sustain me in a deep and profound way. I am grateful to my precious parents, Robert Quinn and Manijeh Samandari Quinn; my sister, Laleh Quinn; and her partner, Doug Nitz. Finally, my beloved and learned husband, Stephen Lambden, has not only helped me through every step of this journey but also filled it with laughter and happiness.
