

LAW, LEGAL EXPERTISE AND EU POLICY-MAKING

This edited collection examines the changing role of the legal profession as experts in the context of European Union policy-making. Drawing on theoretical and empirical research and the idea of law as a social and political practice, this socio-legal work brings together a group of legal scholars and political scientists to investigate how lawyers, through the deployment of their expertise and knowledge, act as experts in matters of EU related policy-making at the national, European and international levels. It provides new theoretical viewpoints and untold stories from legal experts themselves, promotes an evolving definition of what constitutes legal expertise and what shapes legal experts in a time when experts are in equal measure both revered and ignored, and introduces new critical voices in the field of EU socio-legal studies.

Emilia Korkea-aho is Professor of European Law and Legislative Studies at UEF Law School, and Academy of Finland Research Fellow, and Visiting Fellow at the Maastricht Centre for European Law. Her research interests cover EU institutional and constitutional law, and she has published in the areas of EU governance and soft law, lobbying and its regulation, and EU law methodologies. In 2020, she received the Academy of Finland Award for Social Impact for her work on lobbying and its regulation.

Päivi Leino-Sandberg is Professor of Transnational European Law and Director of the Master's Programme in Global Governance Law at the University of Helsinki. She is Deputy Director of the Erik Castrén Institute of International Law and Human Rights where she leads five international research projects in various areas of EU law. Before returning full time to the academia in 2015, she worked for over 10 years as a legal adviser for the Finnish government participating in numerous EU and international negotiations and Court cases.

This book has its roots in two research projects funded by the Academy of Finland. Both concerned the role and impact of advice provided by legal experts, with Päivi exploring these themes in the context of EU institutions and Emilia in the field of lobbying. They led us to reflect together on the role and effects of legal experts in relation to EU policy-making and to consider how they might be studied. Both of us presented our initial ideas at the W. G. Hart Legal Workshop on ‘Valuing Expertise: Legal, Normative and Social Dimensions’ organised by London University’s Institute of Advanced Legal Studies in 2016. That event revealed that we were both particularly interested in the nature of legal expertise. We continued our discussions and methodological explorations in Helsinki and then came up with the idea of bringing together, for further reflection, a group of academics similarly interested in legal experts but whose approaches to the subject were somewhat different from our own.

Our plan to make this into a collective volume matured during a two-week writing retreat in Paris in April 2018 – the memory of which that has buoyed us up while bringing the project to completion during the pandemic! The contributions and overall plan were further developed through a conference on the subject of ‘Legal Experts in Transnational Policy-Making’ held at the Erik Castrén Institute of International Law and Human Rights (ECI) later that year. Antoine Buchet, Toni Malminen, Jo Shaw and Immi Tallgren took part in that conference, in addition to ourselves. Panu Minkinen designed a poster for the event in accordance with our wishes. The conference received support from the Finnish Lawyers’ Association and the UEF Law School, as well as from the Academy of Finland. The manuscript was completed in April 2020.

efficiently. Pinja Lindvall and Linda Sydänmaanlakka helped with the editing, and Katariina Flinck with the preparation of the index. Meg Morley translated the draft article by Pierre France and Antoine Vauchez. Anna van der Velde at ECI has supported us in every possible way during the realisation of the project. We also thank Katja Tukiainen for giving us permission to use her work Lippujuhla as the cover illustration for the book.

We dedicate the book to the legal experts whom we study, and to our families for their patience during the project and beyond.
