

Contents

List of Figures	page viii
Acknowledgements	ix
List of Abbreviations	xi
Introduction	I
1 The Last Supper	7
The Search for Eucharistic Origins	7
The Date and Character of the Last Supper	12
The Words of Institution	20
The Bread of Life Discourse of John 6	33
Conclusion	36
2 The Eucharist in the Early Church	37
The Temple Context of the Early Christian Eucharist	38
Sources for Early Christian Liturgy	47
Material Settings	67
Conclusion	76
3 Development of Eucharistic Prayers in the Third and Fourth Century	78
Early Eucharistic Prayers: An Atmosphere of ‘Controlled Freedom’	78
After Constantine: Antioch and Alexandria as Liturgical Centres	94
Other Liturgical Developments	101
Conclusion	103

4	The Formative Period of Latin Liturgy	104
	A Christian Latin Culture	104
	The Canon of the Mass	110
	Possible Antecedents of the Roman Eucharistic Prayer	125
	Rhetoric of Salvation	129
	Conclusion	143
	Appendix: Ambrose's Eucharistic Prayer and the Canon Missae	145
5	Roman Stational Liturgy	154
	Pontifical and Presbyteral Celebrations	154
	Liturgical Books	156
	Stational Liturgy According to Ordo Romanus I	169
	The Role of Chant in the Mass	173
	Particular Questions Relating to the Papal Stational Liturgy	191
	The Direction of Liturgical Prayer in Roman Basilicas	204
	Conclusion	212
6	The Expansion and Adaptation of the Roman Liturgy in the Carolingian Age	214
	Expansion of Roman Liturgical Practice	214
	The Mass in Merovingian Gaul	217
	The Rise of the Carolingian Dynasty and Liturgical Patronage	219
	Church Reform in the Age of Charlemagne	223
	Personal and Emotive Liturgical Expression	234
	Raising the Level of Latinity	246
	Local Reform and Practical Reach	249
	East and West	252
	Conclusion	254
7	From the Ottonian Revival to the High Middle Ages	256
	From the Carolingian to the Ottonian Age	256
	The Ordo Missae	257
	The Romano-Germanic Pontifical and the Ottonian Church	268
	The Reform Papacy and the Roman Liturgy	275
	The Papal Chapel and the Franciscan Liturgy in the Thirteenth Century	281
	The Plenary Missal and the Expansion of Private Masses	288

Contents

vii

Veneration and Reservation of the Eucharist	295
Preaching at Mass	302
Conclusion	305
8 Decline and Vitality in the Later Middle Ages	307
The Autumn of the Middle Ages?	308
Religion as a System of Symbols	311
Popular Participation	313
Unity and Diversity in the Development of the Missal	322
Codification of Ritual	327
The Mass and Sacred Polyphony	335
Transformations in Church Architecture	338
Conclusion	341
9 The Tridentine Reform	343
Liturgical Life on the Eve of Trent	343
The Council of Trent	345
The Missale Romanum of 1570	349
The Shape of the ‘Tridentine Mass’	354
Reservation of the Eucharist and Church Architecture	357
Sacred Music	362
Conclusion	364
Appendix: The Ordinarium Missae of the 1570 Missale Romanum	367
Epilogue	391
Bibliography	393
Index	438