

CONTENTS

Series Editor’s Preface	ix
James C. Hathaway
Acknowledgment	x
Table of Cases	xii
Table of Treaties and Directives	xiv
Introduction: Grasping Legal Time	1
What Then Is Time?	4
Human Time	5
Clock Time	7
Legal Time and Lawful Time	10
The Arrow of Time	10
The Argument	12
1 The Virtues of Legal Time	16
The Success of Clock Time	18
The Function of Human Time in Law	23
Techniques of Temporal Differentiation	24
Temporality	25
Deadlines	29
Qualification	31
Antedating	33
Procedures	34
Conclusion: Is There No End to the Manipulability of Time in Law?	36

2 The Vices of Legal Time	39
Bergson and the Problem of Extension or the Reference to Processes	40
General or Unique Time: The Formal/Material Problem	45
Time as Proxy	45
Individual, Material Time	47
General, Formal Time	49
Grasping the Process of Time	50
Heidegger, Eternity, and Mortality	52
Stoppage Time	54
Time Traveling	56
Confined to Eternity	60
Conclusion: Grasping Human Time	63
 3 Jus Temporis or the Immigrant's Right to Human Time	 65
Taking Human Time Seriously: Rootedness	66
Domicile and Ties	67
Can a Criminal Alien Integrate?	70
Jus Temporis as Ground for Inclusion of Rooted Migrants	76
Concrete Implications of Jus Temporis	80
Waiting Time	82
When Does Temporariness End?	86
Regularization	89
Conclusion: The Vanity of Legal Time	95
 Conclusion: The Critical State of Jus Temporis in European Migration Law	 97
 Bibliography	 103
Index	109