

The Basilica of Saint John Lateran to 1600

The archbasilica of Saint John Lateran is the world's earliest cathedral. A Constantinian foundation pre-dating Saint Peter's in the Vatican, it remains the seat of the bishop of Rome, the pope, to this day. This volume brings together scholars of topography, archaeology, architecture, art history, geophysical survey and liturgy to illuminate this profoundly important building. It takes the story of the site from the early imperial period, when it was occupied by elite housing, through its use as a barracks for the emperor's horse guards to Constantine's revolutionary project and its development over 1,300 years. Richly illustrated throughout, this innovative volume includes both broad historical analysis and accessible explanations of the cutting-edge technological approaches to the site that allow us to visualise its original appearance.

LEX BOSMAN is Professor of Architectural History at the University of Amsterdam, with a special interest in Early Christian and Medieval Architecture. He has been a fellow of the Royal Netherlands Institute in Rome and Scholar in Residence at the Istituto Universitario Olandese di Storia dell'Arte in Florence. He is the author of many publications, including The Power of Tradition: Spolia in the Architecture of St. Peter's in the Vatican (2004).

IAN P. HAYNES is Professor of Archaeology at Newcastle University, specialising in Roman Archaeology. He has directed twelve field projects in five countries and in 2019 was awarded an ERC Advanced Grant for a five-year investigation of SE Rome. He is the author or editor of eight books including Blood of the Provinces (2013).

PAOLO LIVERANI was Curator for Classical Antiquities at the Vatican Museum and is now Professor of Ancient Topography at the University of Florence. He is the author of eight books, including The Vatican Necropolis (2010).

Acknowledgements

The editors and authors of this volume would like to extend their thanks to the following colleagues for their contribution to its production.

It has been an extraordinary privilege to research the story of the archbasilica of Saint John Lateran and to work in the archaeological area beneath the cathedral. None of the analysis below ground would have been possible without the kind support of Dr Barbara Jatta, director of the Vatican Museums, the colleagues of the Vatican Museums' Department of Greek and Roman Antiquities who have contributed to this volume and Dr Leonardo Di Blasi of the same department. For his gracious permission to conduct research inside the Archbasilica, we are indebted to Mons. Natalino Zagotto, Capitolo della Basilica di S. Giovanni in Laterano. The help of Stefano Porfiri and Roberto Rosselli, both of the archbasilica, is also very gratefully acknowledged. In and around the basilica grounds, the insight, expertise and technical assistance of colleagues from the Servizi Tecnici del Governatorato, notably the director, Don Rafael Garcia de la Serrana Villalobos, Ing. Enrico Sebastiani and Ing. Silvio Scripanti, has been of the greatest possible importance.

The idea for a volume on Saint John Lateran developed from conversations with Professor Christopher Smith, then director of the British School at Rome. He also secured the generous funding that made the initial conference in September 2016 possible, and has been of tremendous support throughout. Our thanks go to the generous anonymous donor, a major supporter of the British School at Rome, whose gift made all the difference to taking this work forward. The British School's ongoing support, both from Christine Martin and Stefania Peterlini in the organisation of the launch conference, and subsequently through the director, Professor Stephen Milner, has been indispensable. We also wish to extend our thanks to Professor Barbara Borg, the BSR's chair of publications, and to the two anonymous readers whose reports on the volume were so useful to us as editors.

Further thanks are due to the Royal Netherlands Institute in Rome (KNIR) for supporting the conference in 2016, lodging several of the speakers and hosting a reception for conference delegates. We are also grateful to the Netherlands Institute for Advanced Study (NIAS) for a fellowship for Lex and for facilitating an early and formative residential seminar on visualisation, and to the many colleagues who have joined us in discussion on so many aspects of this journey. In particular, we thank Dr Patricia Lulof, and Professor Drs Bram Kempers, Ralf Behrwald, Sible de Blaauw and Bernard Frischer. Ian would like to thank the Fellows of Peterhouse, Cambridge for electing him a Visiting Fellow to pursue work on this volume. He also acknowledges with gratitude the hospitality of the McDonald Institute of Archaeology at the University of Cambridge during the same period. As directors of the Lateran Project, Paolo and Ian would also like to acknowledge their debt to the many colleagues otherwise unnamed in this volume whose sheer hard work and technical expertise played a vital role in the extensive survey work undertaken at the Lateran. In this context we would especially wish to honour the work of Dr Sabrina Amaducci, Dave and Denise Heslop, Stephen Kay, Dr Antonio Garcia Lopez, Adriano Morabito (and our colleagues at Roma Sotterranea) and Alex Turner.

The compilation of the volume has been a substantial task, and we are most grateful for the expertise and assistance of three colleagues in particular, all of them accomplished archaeologists in their own right. Dr Thea Ravasi has contributed to multiple aspects of the finished volume and prepared many of the technical illustrations. Dr Evan Scherer has played an invaluable role in further proofreading and the building of the bibliography. Dr Giacomo Savani further contributed extensively to both editing and the translation of key texts.
