Index

active learning, 40 adjacency pairs, 26–27
affect intensifier, 123 affect specifier, 123
affective stances
  defined, 120, 123
  epistemic, 154
storybook reading, 436–439
talk as, 129–132
types of, 123–124
apologies (directive), 125–127 attention and storybook reading, 436–439 augmentative and alternative communication (AAC), 362
autism
  as both a difference and disability, 353
  conversation analysis (CA), 354–357 neurodiversity and inclusive education alignment, 353–354 neurodiversity framework, 353 belonging in early childhood education and child mental health, 289–290
defined, 286–287
peer inclusion/exclusion, 290–292
practice recommendations, 301–302 transition to preschool situations, 288–289 blocking (embodiment), 88–89
caregiver-child interactions
directives in, 433–436
methodology of, 428–429
responsibility, 427–428
sharing attention by pointing, 429–433
Child and Adolescent Mental Health Service (CAMHS), 339 Classroom Assessment Scoring System (CLASS), 230–231 cognitive science and embodiment, 80–82
  collaborative writing
  importance of, 173–176
  in peer interactions, 176–177, 178–180 communication
  child-directed communication model, 426–427
directives, 433–436
conditional relevance, 27, 133 conlict in childhood
  conversation analysis (CA), 392–400
culture and, 389
  practice recommendations, 400–401
  and principle of fairness, 389 and principles of fairness, 388–389 and social world construction, 390 studies on gender differences, 389 teacher role in, 391 types of strategies used in, 390 conversation analysis (CA) and early childhood education, 4–6, 30–31 importance of question design, 340–346
joint projects with shared goals, 377–379
mental health assessment project, 340 conversation analysis (CA) and belonging greetings, 293–297 preschool and peer group, 297–301 conversation analysis (CA) and caregiver-child interactions (CGI) directive communication, 433–436
sharing attention by pointing, 429–433 conversation analysis (CA) and creativity, 251–259 conversation analysis (CA) and culture ethnomethodology and conversation analysis (EMCA), 390 and sociocultural learning theories, 23 sociocultural overview, 21–22 conversation analysis (CA) and digital technology email usage, 216–220
  web searching, 207–216
conversation analysis (CA) and embodiment, 89–92
Index

conversation analysis (CA) and emotion crying and, 102–105
enchantment in storytelling, 111–115 negative emotions and, 108–111 response to injuries and distress, 106–108 conversation analysis (CA) and epistemics during activity, 154–158 between claims and exhibitions, 145–146
in conversation, 144–146
during instructions, 147–154 conversation analysis (CA) and friendship accessing play, 370–372 encouraging children to engage, 341–346
game inclusion, 375–377
joint projects with shared goals, 377–379
peer culture, 381–382
play objects, 373–374
conversation analysis (CA) and language socialisation
apologising, 125–127
replaying third party talk, 132–135 requesting, 128–129
talk as affective stance, 129–132 conversation analysis (CA) and literacy child-initiated orientation, 167–168
collaborative writing, 175–180 reading and writing, 168–171
shared book reading, 171–175
and storytelling, 186–188 conversation analysis (CA) and mathematics instructional support, 231–232
spatial thinking, 231–232 starting school, 232–242 conversation analysis (CA) and mental health, 341–346
conversation analysis (CA) and morality accounting for actions, 412–415 establishing shared agreement, 420–422 modeling play actions and feelings, 416–420 problematic peer play, 409–411 rules of conduct, 415–416 conversation analysis (CA) and multilingualism, 270–280
conversation analysis (CA) and play
in early childhood education, 313–325
game inclusion, 375–377
joining play, 370–372
multi-party after parental separation, 315–321
multi-party during whole-group circle time, 321–325
pretend play, 379
sharing play objects, 373–374 conversation analysis (CA) and storytelling personal experience and, 191–196
research findings, 186–188
second stories through, 189–191 conversation analysis (CA) in children’s conflict
creating resolution space, 393–394 direct instruction, 392–393 scaffolding fair resolution, 398–400 soliciting children’s ideas, 394–398 conversation analysis (CA) in inclusive and neurodiversity education communicative abilities and, 361–362 contribution to, 354 participation, 358–361
reframing conversational coherence, 355–357
reframing repetitive speech, 357–358 surfacing autistic communication competence, 354–355
conversation analysis (CA) methodology origins of, 2–3, 22–23
for professional development, 3–4 transparency of, 3
conversation analysis (CA) methods analysis, 25
recording, 24
transcription, 25
Conversation Analytic Role-play Method
(CARM), 3–4
correction (social action)
defined, 131
exposed, 131
creativity in early childhood education creative science language, 251–259 designing play-based curriculum, 249–251 developing in classroom, 249 and play, 247
practice recommendations, 259–261
research findings, 248–249
cultural gloss, 131
culture
belonging and, 287–288
and childhood conflict, 389 conversation analysis (CA), 21–22, 23
gloss, 131
in peer friendships, 380–382 and responsibility, 439–440
demonstrations of understanding, 145–146 digital technology in early childhood associated beliefs, 206 barriers to, 205–206
conflicting views of benefits, 204–205
Index 447

popularity in industrialized countries, 204 Statement on young children and digital technologies, 205 digital technology in early childhood education benefits, 205
practice recommendations, 220–222
using email, 216–220
web searching, 207–216
directives
caregiver-child interactions, 433–436
defined, 124–125
talk as affective stance, 129–132
talking with children, 125 disability education. See inclusion education preferred actions, 27, 131 disputes. See conflict in childhood elicited imitation, 125
e-mail usage in early childhood education body composition, 218–220 login and greeting, 217–218 embodiment in early childhood interaction
background, 78–79
blocking, 88–89
cognitive science and, 80–82
directives
emotion and, 97–99
in formal education settings, 87–92 forms of, 83–84
joint attention and mutual monitoring, 84–86
manual guiding, 89
practice recommendations, 92–93
role of, 89–92
sharing affect and emotions, 86–87 social interaction and, 82–83 touch, 84
emergent literacy. See literacy in early childhood education emotion in early childhood interaction crying, 99–100, 102–105
enchantment in storytelling, 111–115 injuries and distress, 106–108 and moral socialization, 102–108 negative, 108–111
positive, 100–101
practice recommendations, 115–116
research in, 99–100
Teaching strategies, 101
through talk and embodied actions, 97–99 emotional regulation, 98 emotional education in early childhood education after separation from parents, 315–318
imaginary play, 318–321
in whole group circle time, 318–321 epistemic domain, 144
epistemic stances, 154
epistemic status (speaker), 29, 154 epistemics in early childhood background, 142–143
in conversation, 143–144
demonstrations of understanding, 145–146
directives in, 144–146
practice recommendations, 158–159
epistemics in early childhood management during activity instructions, 147–154
background, 146–147
during children’s activities, 154–158 ethnomethodology and conversation analysis (EMCA)
and conflict, 390
families and, 426–441
and morality, 405–423
evidence-based communications strategies in education in mental health, 334–335 signs of anxiety and depression, 336 families in childhood education culture and responsibility, 439–440
directives in, 433–436
ethnomethodology of, 426–441
practice recommendations, 440–441 responsibility in caregiver-child interactions (CGI), 427–428
sharing attention by pointing, 429–433
storybook reading, 436–439
F-formation, 59
first pair part (adjacency pair), 26, 133 friendships in childhood. See also play in early childhood education characteristics of, 368–369 in cultural and linguistically diverse settings, 380–382 from developmental perspective, 369–370
joining play, 370–372, 375–377
joint projects with shared goals, 377–379
play objects, 373–374
practice recommendations, 382–384
pretend play, 379

© in this web service Cambridge University Press & Assessment  www.cambridge.org
Index

gesture, impact of, 239–242

guided participation theory, 56

imaginary play, 318–321

inclusion education and autism, 353–354

autism, 353–354

conversation analysis (CA), 354–362

as fundamental human right, 352

practice recommendations, 362–363

scope of, 352

instructive discourse, 143

interactional space, 85

Kei Tua o te Pae, 57

knowledge asymmetries, 143–146 language socialisation. See also ethnomethodology and conversation analysis about child wellbeing, 337–338

defined, 120

friendships in, 380–382

in mental health, 333–334

multilingualism, 266–282

lighthouse gaze, 112

linguistic nativism, 268

linguistic signs, 120

literacy in early childhood everyday events child-initiated, 167–168

collaborative writing, 175–180

expert acts of, 168–171

practice recommendations, 180–181

research in, 166

shared book reading, 171–175

literacy in early childhood everyday events, importance of, 165–166

manual guiding, 89

mathematics in early childhood education and educational quality, 227

importance of, 227–229

practice recommendations, 243

spatial thinking, 229–232

and start of school, 232–242

mental health

defined, 334

evidence-based, 334–335

juxtaposed educational concepts, 334–335

mental health assessment project

background, 338–339

context of, 339

conversation analysis (CA), 340

ethics of, 340

importance of question design, 340–346

modal interrogative, 126 morality in childhood education

accounting for actions, 412–415

children telling problems to adults, 406–407 establishing shared agreement and activity contract, 420–422 invoking rules of conduct, 415–416

modeling play actions and feelings, 416–420

norms of conduct and feelings, 407–408

practice recommendations, 422–423

problematic conduct, 409

problematic peer play, 409–411

storybook reading and, 436–439

Swedish ethnographic study in, 408–409

multilingualism in early childhood education bias against, 268–270

bilingual classroom setting, 270–280 innate capacity for language development, 267–268

linguistic nativism, 268

monolingual history, 267

practice recommendations, 280–282

prevalence of, 266

neurodiversity framework in education for autism, 353–354

conversation analysis (CA), 354–362

practice recommendations, 362–363

observer's paradox, 24

other-initiated repair, 28

paraverbal behaviour, 82

participation frameworks

defined, 59, 121–122

in early childhood education, 61–73

F-formation, 59

prompting, 122–123

scaffolding, 66–73

spatial proximity, 60, 70, 71–73

participation in early childhood interaction education guidance on, 57–59 frameworks, 59–73

initiating for enquiry, 61–66

practice recommendations, 74

scaffolding participation frameworks, 66–73 socio-cultural theories, 53–57

peer culture friendships, 381–382 play

and belonging in Swedish preschool, 292–301 and creativity, 247
designing curriculum for creativity, 249–251
peer inclusion/exclusion, 290–292
and spatial thinking, 230 play in early childhood education. See also friendships in childhood adult participation in, 310–313
importance of, 309
multi-party nature of, 309–310
as platform for emotional education, 313–325
practice recommendations, 325–326
problematic peer play, 409–411 pointing and sharing attention, 429–433 positive mental health and wellbeing in early childhood
conceptualizing normal development, 333
importance of, 331
importance of question design, 340–346
and mental health assessment project, 338–340
practice recommendations, 346–348
preference organisation, 27 preferred action, 27
prompting in participation frameworks, 122–123 question design, 340–341 question-answer sequences, 144–146 recipient design, 29
repair
defined, 28
other-initiated, 28
self, 28
replaying talk of third party, 132–135 reported speech, 132
request (directive)
for action, 133–135
defined, 125
responsibility
in caregiver-child interactions (CGI), 427–428
culture and, 439–440
Sacks, Harvey, 22–23
scaffolding in children's learning
defined, 56
participation frameworks, 66–73
working theories, 68
science and creativity collaborative language around, 251–256 enabling creative discussions, 256–259 second pair part (adjacency pairs), 26, 133 self-repair, 28
sequence closing third (directive), 127
sequence in interaction autism and, 39
defined, 38
developmental ordering in, 39–40 human capacity for, 38–39 infant, 39
sharing attention in, 40 sequence in interaction and object presentation
bystander attraction, 49–50 establishing and maintaining intersubjectivity, 42–46
practice recommendations, 50–52 shared attention and learning, 46–49 significance of, 41
social action, 41
sequence of actions, 26 shared book reading. See also storybook reading
importance of, 171
second stories through, 189–191
story structure talk, 172–174 story understanding, 174–175 sharing attention
and active learning, 40
F-formation for, 60
sequence in interaction, 40
storybook reading, 40
social actions, 120
socialisation in early childhood
affective stances, 123–124
directives, 124–132
ideologies, 136–137
practice recommendations, 137–138 relationships between children, 136 talk as social action, 122–123
through language, 136
to use language, 135–136
spatial thinking in early childhood education Classroom Assessment Scoring System
(CLASS), 230–231
concept of 'between', 234–238 development of, 230
impact of gesture, 239–242
importance of, 229–230
numbers, 238–239
speech act theory, 122
Statement on young children and digital technologies, 205
Index

storybook reading. See also shared book reading; storytelling conversation analysis (CA) and caregiver-child interactions (CGI), 436–439 emotion in, 111–115
and literacy development, 40 storytelling. See also storybook reading and conversation analysis (CA), 186–188 genre research, 186
practice recommendations, 196–198
purpose of, 185
storytelling examples
recounting personal experience, 191–196 second stories through shared storybook reading, 189–191
talk as social action, 122–123
talking with children
about wellbeing and mental health, 337–338 as affective stance, 129–132
directives, 125
extraordinary range of skills in, 1–2
importance of, 1
lack of explicit instructions for, 1 talk-in-interaction, 22 touch in embodiment, 84 turn-taking (conversation), 26 web searching in early childhood education phases assessing result options, 212–213 engaging with results, 213–216 entering search topic, 209–212 finding search topic, 207–209 zone of proximal development (ZPD)
defined, 55–56
in scaffolding participation frameworks, 66–73