

Contents

Preface to this edition by COLIN HOWSON	page ix
Preface	xi
1 Methodology	1
Introduction	1
Aspects of the scientific method	3
A taste of Bayesianism	10
2 Probability	15
The primitive theory	15
Subjectivism	18
The rationalist interpretation	30
The logical interpretation	34
The evidential state	36
The empirical interpretation	40
3 Confirmation	48
Explications	48
The paradox	50
A Bayesian pseudo-solution to the problem of induction	59
Projection	65
4 Induction	68
(A) The nature of inductive inference	69
(B) Conditions of rationality	75
Demonstrable reliability	75
The demonstrable reliability of $c^t$	77
Immodesty	81
Audacity	83
(C) The justification of induction	84
The impossibility of a noncircular rationale	85
Inductive demonstration of reliability	86
Semantic justification	90
5 Prediction	93
Surprise	93

Severe tests	97
Ad hoc hypothesis	98
Prediction versus accommodation	101
6 Evidence	110
The evidential value of varied data	110
The value of further data	113
7 Realism	121
Popper	121
Realism versus instrumentalism	124
Putnam	127
Glymour	129
Conclusion	131
Bibliography	133
Index	135