

Cambridge University Press

978-1-316-50951-7 - The Works Council: A German Experiment in Industrial Democracy

C. W. Guillebaud

Index

More information

INDEX

- A.D.G.B. (Allgemeiner Deutscher Gewerkschaftsbund), or Federation of "Free" Trade Unions, 43, 66–7; Leipzig Congress of 1922, 66; and education, 75–6; its newspaper Gewerkschaftszeitung, 81 (see "Free" Trade Unions)
- Afa, or Central organisation of salaried employees' Trade Unions, 43
- American statistics, their influence on German employees, 240–1
- Article 165 of new Constitution, wording of, 9–11; its recognition of Workers' Councils in the Constitution, 13, 120–1, 236; its provision of Regional and Federal Councils, 123–6
- Asterott, Karl, in Soziale Praxis, 99 n.
- Auxiliary Service Act of 1916, and organised labour, 2–4, 83, 212, 213; and composition of Conciliation Boards, 23, 213
- Balance Sheet and Profit and Loss Account to be submitted to Works Council, 19, 183–8, 238; Socialist declaration on, 184; view of Dr R. Einstein on, 185; difficulties of estimation caused by inflation and stabilisation of currency, 185–6; Act regulating their construction, 281
- Bergwerks-Zeitung, the Questionnaire of, 284–6
- Berlin, strong radical element in, 42–3, 86; important Congress of Works Councils in, 43–5, 214
- Betriebsrätezeitschrift...der Metallindustrie, 211 n.
- Boards of conciliation and arbitration (unofficial), 23 (see Conciliation Boards)
- Breslau, Trade Union Congress in 1925, 67, 246; Resolution of, 290–1
- Brigl-Matthiasz, Das Betriebsräteproblem (1926), 104 n.
- Buderus Combine, report of Conference of its Works Councils, 210–11
- Central Works Councils, provided for in the Act, 207–8, 268; functions of, 207; formed in many great vertical combines, 208, 226; of Siemens Combine, 210; of Buderus Combine, 210; election of, 279–80
- Central Works Councils of German Federal Railways, 202–3, 289; value of their meetings, 203; their relation to Federal Ministers, 203; their activity, 204; continuity of their personnel, 204
- Chambers of Commerce, Handicrafts and Agriculture, 121; their reconstruction demanded by Trade Unions, 121–3
- "Christian" Trade Unions, 34; adhere to Catholic Centre Party, 34; their attitude towards Works Councils, 48, 105; of Textile Workers, 48; determined upholders of the Craft Union, 68; keen for education, 77
- Collective Agreements regulated by Order of Dec. 1918, 4, 36–40; table relating to, 39; Federal, 39; cardinal policy of Trade Unions, 36–7, 55; a cause of friction, 56–64; in relation to "Works Agreement", 57–9, 60; struggle of Trade Unions for, 60–4; extension of, 64; legal recognition of, 69; effect of inflation in 1923 on, 107, 224, and of stabilisation, 108–9; and hours of work, 142–3; and works rules, 156–8; in German Federal Railways, 200, 201; loyalty of Works Councils to, 231
- Combines, vertical, 208; Siemens, 210, 211; Buderus, 210–11; Works Councils in, 207–11
- Communists, their influence after the War, 4–9, 42–3, 69–72, 86, 213–14, 216, 219; their most

Cambridge University Press

978-1-316-50951-7 - The Works Council: A German Experiment in Industrial Democracy

C. W. Guillebaud

Index

More information

INDEX

- Communists (cont.)
 important Trade Union, 47; their chief strength in the Ruhr mining district, 47–8, and in Berlin, 42–3, 86; concentrated their influence on municipal undertakings, 206–7
 Compensation for unjustified dismissal of employees, 167–9, 234
 Conciliation Boards, 3, 21, 23–6, 27, 213; composition of, 24; essential principle of, 25, 30; recent experiences of not wholly satisfactory, 28–9, changes introduced in 1923, 29–30, 37–8; relation to Auxiliary Service Act of 1916, 23, 213; interpreters of Works Councils Act, 85–6; rulings of, 89; decide disputes as to works rules, 155–6; decisions with regard to unjust dismissals, 165–6; of Guben, 167; their success, 228
 Conciliation Officers (Schlichter), their functions, 26
 Conciliation Order of Oct. 30, 1923, 24; changes introduced by, 24, 38; modification of, 29–30
 Congress of Councils in Berlin, 1918, 7
 Control Boards, election of Works Councilors on to, 19, 188–96; legal functions of, 189–90; appoint “Procurists”, 189; many are largely a form, 190; Works Councils’ rights to serve on them have proved sterile, 194–6; Act regulating election of Members of Works Councils to, 282–3
 Cost of living in 1923, 107
 Councils of Soldiers, Workers and Peasants, their use as revolutionary organs, 5–9
 Craft Unionism, 35, 64–5; upheld by “Christian” Unions, 68
 Currency, inflation in 1923, 40, 57, 107–8, 185–6; stabilisation in 1924, 108–15, 186, 224
 Dawes Scheme and transformation of German railways, 197 n., 204 Democratic control of industry, labour leaders’ desire for, 246; resolution on, 290–1
 Dersch, 292 n., 293 n.
 Dismissals, Works Councils in relation to, 19, 54–5, 110–11, 159–69, 266–8; decisions as to unjust hardship of, 165–6; large numbers of, 1923–26, 168; and German law, 168; protection of Works Councilor against, 169–76, 225 n.; judgment of Provincial Court of Elberfeld on, 173–4
 Disputes, types of, 20–1; settlement of, 20–32, 268–9; as to smoking in working-hours, 93
 Dissmann, R., on demagogic influence in Works Councils, 70
 District Works Councils of German Federal Railways, 198–202
 Dresden Works Council courses of education, 79
 Education, growth of interest in since the War, 75; Works Councils and, 75–82, 195, 243; Trade Unions and, 52, 77–82
 Einstein, Dr Robert, on estimation of profits by Works Councils, 185
 Elberfeld Provincial Court, judgment on dismissal of Works Councilor, 173–4 Ellert, Lehrberatung in Betriebsrätschulen, 76 n.
 Employers, their relations to employed affected by Works Council Act, 52–64, 86–8, 90, 92–6; their relations to Works Councils, 91, 99–106, 219–24, 226–8, 238–41; and corruption, 101–2; and assimilation, 103–4; and “paralysation policy”, 104–6; in 1924 were able to disregard Works Councils, 106, 215, 224–5; effects of inflation and stabilisation of currency on their relations with Works Councils, 108–15, 224–6; oppose Regional Works Councils, 122; welcome co-operation of Works Councils in welfare work, 153–4, and in selection of employees for dismissal, 167–9; required to make a Quarterly Report to Works Council, and to give information as to business, 176–83; their opposition to revealing trade secrets, 186–8, 240; their opposition to election of Works Coun-

Cambridge University Press

978-1-316-50951-7 - The Works Council: A German Experiment in Industrial Democracy

C. W. Guillebaud

Index

More information

INDEX

- Employers (cont.)
 cillors on Control Boards, 188, 190–1, 195–6, 240
- Erdel, 292 n.
- Erfurt, Report of Factory Inspectors for, 50–1
- Erzberger, his influence on Workers' Councils movement, 9
- "Establishments", meaning of term, 14; statistics relating to, 118–20, 129; many of them outside the scope of Act of 1920, 119; "dwarf", 119
- "Factory Committee" from which Works Council evolved, 1, 212; election of obligatory in Prussian mining districts, 1–2
- Factory Inspectors, their influence in the evolution of Works Councils, 22, 89–90; their functions, 22–3, 89–90; value of their Reports, 89, 113–14, 126, 143; their criticisms of Works Councils, 93–7, 143–6; and settlement of disputes, 97; their Reports for 1925, 116–17; on good relations between Works Councils and Trade Unions, 117; their figures relating to establishments and numbers employed, 118; on elections to Works Councils, 126–30; on want of vigour of Works Councils, 139–40; on Accidents and Works Hygiene, 143–6; on Works Councils and dismissals, 169; Baden report on Control Boards, 194–5, 196; on absence of Councils, 244, 245 (see Reports)
- Federal Economic Council, 21; proposed constitution of, 123–4
- Feig, Betriebsräte und Wirtschafts-räte, 126 n.
- Firth, Cromwell's Army, 5 n.
- Flatow, 60 n., 292 n., and Joachim, 156 n.
- "Free" Trade Unions, 33; associated with Social Democratic Party, 34; influence of War on, 35, 40–1; their action in regard to Works Councils, 45–7, and education, 77; number of Works Councils within their organisation, 120; their Resolution at Breslau Congress, 67, 246, 290–1
- Fricke, Betriebsräteschulung, 76 n., 80 n.
- German, problems of factory system, 1; Joint Industrial Alliance, 4; Order of Dec. 23, 1918, "The Great Charter of Labour", 4; Revolution of 1918 influenced by Russian revolutionary ideas, 4–8, 213–14; Constitution adopted, 1919, 11; Works Councils Bill passed in 1920 after fierce discussion, 11–13; chaos of industrial conditions after War, 83, subsided after 1920, 89; functions of Factory Inspectors compared with English, 22–3, 89–90; Trade Union movement, 33–41; and English Trade Unions compared, 33, 64, 65, 71; tendency to centralisation in Trade Union movement, 68; colossal inflation of currency, 1923, 40, 57, 107; stabilisation in 1924, 108–15; unfavourable conditions in 1924–25, 115–16; law as to dismissal of employees, 168; company law, 188–90; tendency to combination in industry, 193; municipal undertakings, 205; vertical combines developed since the War, 208; State intervention with labour before and after the War contrasted, 229–30; Federation of Socialist Trade Unions, 184; Marxist influence, 241–2; labour, its desire for a share in control of industry, 246–7; small experience of democratic government, 247–8; and English labour compared, 248; disunity of labour, 217, 248
- German Federal Railways, 197; number of employees in, 197 n., 205; three classes of Works Councils in, 197–200; transformation under Dawes Scheme, 197 n., 204; active part of Works Councils in, 200–5; Trade Unions in relation to, 36, 200; wages governed by a single Collective Agreement, 200; functions of Central Works Council, 202–3; Officials' Councils with

Cambridge University Press

978-1-316-50951-7 - The Works Council: A German Experiment in Industrial Democracy

C. W. Guillebaud

Index

More information

INDEX

- German Federal Railways (cont.) limited powers, 205; new works rules for in 1922, 203; allocation of duties on Central Works Council of, 289
- Gooch, English Democratic Ideas in the Seventeenth Century, 5 n.
- Graf on officialdom, 71
- Gumpert, *Die Bildungsbestrebungen
 der freien Gewerkschaften*, 77 n.
- Heidelberg, case of dismissal at, 175
- Hirsch-Duncker Trade Unions, 34–5; their outlook compared to Manchester Liberals, 34
- Hours of Work Order, Dec. 21, 1923, 59, 110; checked the movement
 towards “Works Agreements”, 59; and Works Councils, 142–3
- Independent Socialists or minority labour party, 7; influenced by Russian Revolution, 6–8; their formation of Workers’ Councils,
 8–9; their influence on Works
 Councils Bill, 9–12
- Independent Trade Unions, 35
- Industrial Census for 1907, 118
- Industrial Courts, 26–7; now called Labour Courts, 30, 31 (see Labour Courts)
- Industrial Unionism, 64; in relation to Craft Unions, 64–68, 73; effect of Works Councils in stimulating their formation, 65–8, 73; favoured by radical-communist element, 65; led by Metal Workers’ Union, 64, 68; resolutions at Leipzig Congress of “Free” Trade Unions in 1922, 66–7
- Inflation of currency, colossal in 1923, 40, 57, 107–8, 127, 223–4; and wage rates, 151; and estimation of balance sheets by Works Councils, 185–6; its effect on evolution of Works Councils, 223–4
- Joint industrial Alliances, 3–4;
 much in common with Whitley Councils, 4; in relation to Trade Unions, 4, 36, 61–2
- Kaskel, Arbeitsrecht, 60 n.
- Konzernbetriebsräte*, 207–8; their formation in hands of Trade Unions, 209; their organisation most successful in metal and engineering industries, 209–10; courses of instruction for, 211 (see Central Works Councils)
- Koske, Paul, Wie beurteilt man eine Bilanz?, 184 n.
- Krupps, and Central Works Council, 207
- Labour, new problems arising with factory system, 1; influence of War on, 2–3; measures relating to after War, 3–4; influence of Russian Revolution on, 5–8; Works Councils Bill in relation to, 9–13; cleavage of opinion between Independent Socialists and Social Democratic labour party, 7–9; problem of leadership, 68–74; growth of interest in working-class education since the War, 75–82; legislation before and after War compared, 229–30; its hopes and desires in Germany, 246–7; English and German compared, 247–8; disunity of German, 248
- Labour Courts, 21, 26–7, 29–32;
 probable drastic changes in by Government Bill of 1926, 27 n., 31–2; Industrial and Mercantile, 27 n., 30, 31; lawyers admitted to plead in, 32; three stages of, 31–2; their action as to unjust dismissals, 30, 161–9; success of, 228
- Leadership of Trade Unions and Labour Councils, difficulties of,
 70–3, 218; mutual influence of, 74, 218–19
- Legal Liabilities of members of Works Councils, 292–3
- Legien, Karl, and “The Great Charter of Labour”, 4
- Leipzig Congress, 1922, resolution on industrial unionism, 66–7
- Letterhaus, Bernhard, 184 n.
- Maine’s Ancient Law, 235 n.
- “Mandarins” or salaried personnel of the Unions, 69

Cambridge University Press

978-1-316-50951-7 - The Works Council: A German Experiment in Industrial Democracy

C. W. Guillebaud

Index

More information

INDEX

- Marxist influence on German labour, 241–2
- Meissinger, Dr, Die Betriebsgemeinschaft, 61 n.
- Metal Workers' Union, 64, 209; leads in the movement of Industrial Unionism, 68, and in recognition of importance of Works Councils, 68; its influential Journal, 81–2
- Minister of Labour of the Reich, rulings of, 28 n.
- Municipal undertakings, their troubles after the War, 205–6
- Nörpel in Die Arbeit, 61 n.; Aus der Betriebsräte Praxis, 178 n.
- Order of Dec. 23, 1918, "The Great Charter of Labour", 4, 36–8; regulated Collective Agreements, 37–9, 148–9; and legally recognised Trade Unions, 36–7; set up Conciliation Board, 37–8
- "Pacifist" Unions, 35 (see "Yellow")
- Piece-work wages, and useful functions of Works Council, 150–2
- Potthoff, 141 n., 205 n.
- Press, Trades Unions and Works Councils in relation to, 52, 81–2
- "Procurists", 189
- Protokoll der Konferenz des Reichsbeirats der Betriebsräte, in der Metallindustrie*, Dec. 28–30, 1924, 30 n., 182 n.; in der Textilindustrie, 152 n., 195 n., 196 n.
- Provincial Labour Courts, composition of, 32
- Quarterly Reports, purpose and intention of, 179–80, 238; employer is required to lay them before Works Council, 176–83; summary of two made in 1924, 181–2; small practical importance of requirement, 182–3
- Questionnaire of the Bergwerks-Zeitung, 115, 284–6
- Railways (see German Federal)
- "Rationalisation," 116; attitude of Works Councils towards, 238–9
- Regional Economic Councils, 20, 120–6; obstacles to their establishment, 121, 215; in relation to Chambers of Commerce, Handicrafts and Agriculture, 121–3; opposed by employers, 122–4
- Reports of Factory Inspectors, for Baden 1925, 52 n.; Prussia 1921, 53 n., 54 n., 73 n.; Saxony 1925, 80 n.; Berlin 1921, Breslau 1921, and Hanover 1921, 95 n.; Lüneburg 1921, Dortmund 1921, and Liegnitz 1922, 96 n.; Düsseldorf 1922, Halle 1922, and Arnberg 1922, 97 n.; Upper Silesia 1923/24, 112; Berlin 1923/24, 113 n.; Lüneburg 1923, Osnabrück and Aurich 1923/24, and Saxony 1924, 114 n.; Magdeburg, Arnberg, Hessen and Liegnitz, 117 n.; Upper Silesia 1923/24, 128 n.; Erfurt 1923/24 and Saxony 1923/24, 129 n.; Berlin 1923/24, 133 n.; Frankfurt 1921, Minden 1921, and Wiesbaden 1921, 144 n.; Hamburg 1922, Liegnitz 1922, Potsdam 1923, Saxony 1923/24, and Liegnitz 1925, 145 n.; Stettin and Stralsund 1921, 147 n.; Baden, 194–5, 196
- Rhenish-Westphalian Iron and Steel Industry, rules of, 157, 287–8
- "Roof" or holding companies, 193
- Ruhr Mining District, table showing proportions of various classes of Unions, 47; questionnaire issued in 1924, 115, 284–5; revolutionary organisations in, 219
- Russian Revolution, its influence on German Workers' Councils, 4–7, 41, 212–13, 227; and French Revolution compared, 213
- Salaried employees, their relation to wage-earners, 131–6; classification of, 131 n.; their radical tendencies after the Revolution, 133, 186; in relation to employers, 135–6
- Scheidemann, on Workers' Councils, 9
- Schuldt, 60 n.

Cambridge University Press

978-1-316-50951-7 - The Works Council: A German Experiment in Industrial Democracy

C. W. Guillebaud

Index

More information

INDEX

- Scientific management, obstruction to of Works Councils, 238
- Sectional Councils, 15, 18; their duties and powers, 18; their constitution, 131–3, 264–8; co-operation between, 134; their division justified, 136
- Seidel, on value of Works Councils to Trade Unions, 63–4, 80 n., 204 n.
- Siemens Combine, 210, 211
- Sinzheimer, 141 n.
- Smoking during working-hours, disputes as to, 93
- Soviet influence in Workers' Councils, 8–9, 124–5, 212–13
- Spartacists, 7, 12, 100 n. (see Communists)
- Special Representative Bodies, 260–1
- Stabilisation of currency, its effects on employment, 108–15; on estimation of balance sheets, 185–6 (see Currency)
- State intervention in labour conditions before and after the War, 229–30
- Strikes, Works Councils may not legally foment or lead, 17 n.; “wild” led by radical Works Councils, 43, 70; not allowed in German railway Unions during War, 36; no general railway strike since War, 200; moderated by Trade Union influence, 88, 98
- Syndicalism, its strength in the Ruhr Mining District, 47; a danger in Works Councils, 47, 50, 51, 101, 207
- Trade Unions, before the War, 2, 33–5, 64; and the Auxiliary Service Act of 1916, 2–4, 83, 212, 213; their position strengthened by the War, 2–3, 33, 36, 39–41, 64, 68, 73; their relation to the Government, 2, 36, 68; and to Conciliation Boards, 3–4; extension of their powers by the Order of Dec. 23, 1918, 4, 36–8; their relation to Works Councils, 4, 8–12, 88, 213–19, 228, 246, 247; their objections to proposed Labour bill, 32; German and English compared, 33; “Free” or Socialist? 33–4, or A.D.G.B., 43; “Christian”, 34; “Hirsch-Duncker”, 34–5; “Independent”, 35; “Pacifist” or “Yellow”, 35, 109; Craft and Industrial, struggle between, 33, 64–8; movement in Germany, 33–41; Collective Agreements a cardinal policy of, 36–7, 55, 219; table showing changes in membership of, 40, 57; and the Order of Dec. 23, 1918, 36–7; growth in numbers and influence since 1924, 39–41; effect of inflation and stabilisation of currency on, 40, 57, 108–11; their struggle for control of the Works Councils, 41–4; Incorporation of Works Councils within their organisation, 45–52, by general control and supervision, 45–9; control over election to Works Councils, 49; powers to invite delegates to meetings, 50–1; schools and Press, 52; dependence of Works Councils on, 50–1, strikingly shown in 1924–25, 52; of Communists, 47; causes of decline of membership of in 1923, 57, 108, 214–15; their fear of Works Agreements, 62–4; Works Councils and Structure of, 64–8; German tendency to centralisation of, 68; problem of leadership, 68–74, 218–19; revolt against “mandarins” or official leaders, 69–71; and education, 77–82; effect of their disruption on Works Councils, 109; more effective in 1925 than 1924, 116; importance of their support to Works Councils, 117, 216; their controversy with regard to Chambers of Commerce, Handicrafts and Agriculture, 121–3; their opposition to the Soviet principle in Workers' Councils, 125–6; their relations to German Federal Railways, 36, 200; to railway Works Councils, 200–1; and to municipal undertakings, 206–7; their formation and finance of Konzernbetriebsräte, 209; courses of in-

Cambridge University Press

978-1-316-50951-7 - The Works Council: A German Experiment in Industrial Democracy

C. W. Guillebaud

Index

More information

INDEX

- Trade Unions (cont.)
 struction for, 211; outlook of, 217;
 their policy enhanced by Works Councils, 231; Breslau Congress of, 246; and Socialism, 247;
 disunity of in Germany, 214–15, 248
- Tribunals, composition of, 3 n.;
 competent to deal with disputes, 20, 22–32; their important extension of industrial democracy, 235–6
- Unemployment, in 1923, 57; in relation to Works Agreements or “Works Community,” 58–9; services of Works Councils, 224
- Vertical combines, Works Councils in, 207–11; include workers belonging to different Crafts and Trade Unions, 209; most frequent in metal and engineering industries, 209; developed since the War, 208
- Victimisation of Works Councillors, 19, 116, 176, 225
- Wage-earners’ Council and Salaried employees’ Council, relations between, 131–6 (see Salaried employees and Sectional Councils)
- Wage rates, and index numbers, 57; Works Councils as mediators in disputes relating to, 150–2
- War, Trade Unions before, and since, 2–3, 6, 33, 36, 39–41, 64, 68, 73; education since, 75; violent labour upheaval after, 83;
 its effect on evolution of Works Councils, 227; German labour legislation before and after compared, 229–30
- Weimar, Article 165 of Constitution of, and the organisation of Works Councils, 120–7, 212
- Whitley Councils in relation to Joint Industrial Alliances in Germany, 4, 14
- Winschuh, 49 n., 54 n., 61 n.; Betribsrat oder Gewerkschaft, 208 n.
- Wissell, Wirtschaftsräte in Deutschland, 123 n.
- Women, reasons for their inferior positions in Works Councils, 130–1
- Workers’ Committees, origin of, 1–2;
 made obligatory in mines, 1909, 2;
 became stronger during War, 2–3;
 their relation to Trade Unions,
 3–4
- Workers’ Councils, their use as revolutionary organs, 5–9, 219; their relation to Trade Unions, 8–12, 125, 220; their recognition by the Government, 9–10; Scheidemann on, 9; effect of Works Councils on, 83–4; the most distinctive residue of the Soviet idea in the German constitution, 125
- Works Agreement, in relation to Collective Agreement, 57–9, 60–3,
 233, and to the Hours of Work Order of Dec. 21, 1923, 59; employers’ preference for, 60–3;
 literature on legal issues involved in, 60 n.; a policy of decentralisation, 61–4; fear of by Trade Unions, 62–3; chief form of is the Arbeitsordnung or works rules, 233–4
- Works Assembly, 16–17, 257–8;
 constitution of, 136–7; purpose of, 138; its relation to employers and employed, 139; less active than at first, 140–1
- Works Community, 58; methods of forming, 61; a policy of decentralisation, 61 (see Works Agreement)
- Works Councillor, an honorary office, 15; protection against victimisation of, 19, 176; their difficulties, 71–4, 244; their advantages over Trade Union officials, 74; “freed” from productive work, 111–12; number of in 1922, 75; in 1924 privileges curtailed, 112–13; causes of their refusal to stand for election, 128; protection against dismissal of, 169–76, 225 n.; judgment of Elberfeld on, 173–4; their election on to Control Boards of Companies, 188–96;
 educative effect of their functions, 243
- Works Councils, origin of, 1–13, 212;

Cambridge University Press

978-1-316-50951-7 - The Works Council: A German Experiment in Industrial Democracy

C. W. Guillebaud

Index

More information

INDEX

Works Councils (cont.)

evolved out of old factory committees, 1, 212, 213; influence of Russian revolutionary ideas on, 4–6, 212–13, 227; their recognition in the German Constitution by Article 165, 9–13; composed of employees only, 14; election and procedure, 16–17; duties and powers, 17–19, Ch. v, App. 1; relation of Factory Inspectors to, 22–3; and the Trade Union movement, 33–52, 213, 217–19; struggles of Communists to capture, 42–3, 213–14; their incorporation in the Trade Union organisation, 45–52; three means by which this was effected, 45, 49, 50; attitude of “Free” unions towards, 45–7; of “Christian” unions, 48, 53; their dependence on Trade Unions, 51–2, 228; Schools, 52; Press, 52; their neglect of interests of unorganised workers, 52–3; in relation to freedom of association, 52–5; and collective bargaining, 55–63, 148–51; their powers with regard to engagement and dismissal of workers, 53–5, 110–11, 158–69; and “Yellow” unions, 62; and Industrial Unionism, 65, 68; and the revolt against official leaders of Trade Unions, 69–70; demagogic influence in, 70, 72; their influence on Trade Unions, 74, 217–19; and Workers’ education, 75–82; Journal, 81; characteristics of Press, 82; criticism of by Factory Inspectors, 94–6; in strong position in 1922 and 1923, 97–8; their calming influence, 98–9; their relations with employers in 1921–22, 99–106; effects of inflation of currency in 1923, 107–8; and of stabilisation in 1924, 108–15, 223–4; effect of collapse of Trade Unions on, 109; estimate of their numbers, 120; probability of the restriction of their functions, 125–6; elections to, 126–30; difficulty of finding members for, 126–8; decline in numbers of, 129; position of women in, 130–1; division of into Wage-earners and Salaried employees, 131–6; their want of vigour, 139–40; their supervisory functions, 141–9; and hours of work, 142–3; and prevention of accidents and promotion of Works Hygiene, 143–8; reasons for failure in these functions, 146–8, 231–2; their statutory right to investigate wage books, 149; as mediators in disputes as to wage rates, 150–2; help to administer Works Welfare, 152–4; their powers with regard to Works Rules, 155–8; their excellent work with regard to dismissals, 169; their right to obtain information as to business operations, 176–83; is handicapped, 186–8; Socialist commentary for their use, 184; in the German Federal Railways, 197–205; in municipal undertakings, 205–7; in vertical combines, 207–11; controlled by Conciliation Boards, 213; their policy and that of Trade Unions compared, 217–18; as safety-valves, 220–1; evolution of in 1921–23, 221–3; their relations to employers since 1920, 226–8; abnormal conditions during their period of working, 227; their various duties as representatives of the interests of labour, 231–6, 261–4; their loyalty to principle of Collective Agreement, 231; as buffers between employers and employees, 232–3; summary of their achievements, 234–5; no desire to extend their function, 236; their failure to co-operate with employers to increase productivity, 238–9; reasons for this, 241–3; encourage adult education, 243; drift away from, 244–5; not much scope for in commerce, 245; of enduring value in large-scale enterprise, 246; premature, 248; their fundamental danger is disunity of labour, 248; legal liabilities of their members, 292–3

Cambridge University Press

978-1-316-50951-7 - The Works Council: A German Experiment in Industrial Democracy

C. W. Guillebaud

Index

More information

INDEX

- Works Councils Act of Feb. 4, 1920, App. i; origins of partly constitutional, 1–4, partly revolutionary, 5–10, 213; controversies with regard to, 9–13, 220; machinery of, 14–32; settlement of disputes arising out of, 20–32; intentions of its framers, 41–2; its influence on incorporation of Works Councils in the Trade Union organisation, 50; a cause of friction between employers and employed, 56, 84, 135; and Collective Agreements, 56–7; its effect on previous workers' councils and committees, 83–4; its interpretation by Conciliation Boards, 85–6; scope of, 118–20; divides Works Council into Wage-earners' and Salaried employees' Councils, 131; and general labour supervision, 141; its restrictions on right of dismissal of employees, 160–9; and of Works Councillors, 169–76; subsequent Act of 1921, 183 and App. iii; empowers Works Councils to be represented on Control Boards, 188, App. iv; its provision for Central Works Councils, 207–8; reflects new trend of labour legislation, 213, 230–1; objects and hopes of its framers, 237–8; unwillingness to use its machinery, 244; its protective and penal provisions, 269–70; its administrative and temporary provisions, 271–2; its regulations governing elections, 273–80
- Works Rules (Arbeitsordnung), origin of, 1; State regulation of since 1891, 154; provisions of, 154–5, 233–4; since 1920 Works Councils powers with regard to, 155–8; and Collective Agreements, 156–7; form the written constitution of the works, 157; disputes decided by Conciliation Board, 157–8; of Rhenish-Westphalian Iron and Steel Industry, 157 and App. vi; and German railways, 203
- Works Steward, 17 n., 259–60, 268; election of, 280
- Works Unions (Werkvereine), 35
- Works Welfare Institution, 152–4
- “Yellow” Trade Unions, 35, 53; in relation to employers and Works Councils, 35, 62