The book takes stock of the ongoing ‘methodological turn’ in the field of EU law scholarship. Introducing a new generation of scholars of the European Court of Justice from law, history, sociology, political science, and linguistics, it provides a set of novel interdisciplinary research strategies and empirical materials for the study of the Court of Justice of the European Union. The twelve case studies included challenge the usual top-down approach to EU law and the CJEU and instead suggest a more localized and fine-grained observation of the socio-legal actors and practices involved in the making of CJEU case law. Moving beyond mainstream legal scholarship and the established ‘grand narratives’ of legal integration, the volume provides a more historically informed and sociologically grounded account of the EU law’s uneven embeddedness in Europe’s economies and societies.

Mikael Rask Madsen is Professor of European Law and Integration at the Faculty of Law, University of Copenhagen, and the founder and director of iCourts, the Danish National Research Foundation’s Centre of Excellence for International Courts. He has published widely on international law and institutions, and his research has been recognized by a number of prizes, including the Elite Researcher Prize and the Carlsberg Research Prize.

Fernanda G. Nicola is Professor at American University Washington College of Law where she directs the Program on International Organizations Law and Development. She is a visiting permanent professor at iCourts in Copenhagen University. Her is a co-editor of EU Law Stories: Contextual and Critical Histories of European Jurisprudence (Cambridge University Press, 2017).

Antoine Vauchez is a CNRS research professor at the Centre européen de sociologie et de science politique (Université Paris 1-Sorbonne CNRS) and a permanent visiting professor at iCourts in Copenhagen University. He is currently a Michael Endres Visiting professor at the Hertie school of governance. After receiving a PhD at the European University Institute (Florence), he has been a postdoctoral fellow at the American Bar Foundation (Northwestern University), a Marie Curie Fellow at the Robert Schuman Center (EUI), and a visiting professor in a variety of universities (University of Amsterdam, Bocconi University, Columbia University, the Luiss in Rome and the International Institute for the Sociology of Law in Spain, NYU Jean Monnet Center).
STUDIES ON INTERNATIONAL COURTS AND TRIBUNALS

General Editors
Andreas Føllesdal, University of Oslo
Geir Ulfstein, University of Oslo

Studies on International Courts and Tribunals contains theoretical and interdisciplinary scholarship on legal aspects as well as the legitimacy and effectiveness of international courts and tribunals.

Other books in the series:
Mads Andenas and Eirik Bjorge (eds.) A Farewell to Fragmentation: Reassertion and Convergence in International Law
Cecilia M. Bailliet and Nobuo Hayashi (eds.) The Legitimacy of International Criminal Tribunals
Amrei Müller with Hege Elisabeth Kjos (eds.) Judicial Dialogue and Human Rights
Nienke Grossman, Harlan Grant Cohen, Andreas Follesdal and Geir Ulfstein (eds.) Legitimacy and International Courts
Theresa Squatrito, Oran R. Young, Andreas Follesdal, Geir Ulfstein (eds.) The Performance of International Courts and Tribunals
Robert Howse, Hélène Ruiz-Fabri, Geir Ulfstein and Michelle Q. Zang (eds.) The Legitimacy of International Trade Courts and Tribunals
Marlene Wind (ed.) International Courts and Domestic Politics
Christina Voigt (ed.) International Judicial Practice on the Environment: Questions of Legitimacy
Martin Scheinin (ed.) Human Rights Norms in ‘Other’ International Courts
Freya Baetens (ed.) Legitimacy of Unseen Actors in International Adjudication
Shai Dothan International Judicial Review: When Should International Courts Intervene?
Silje Langvatn, Mattias Kumm, Wojciech Sadurski (eds.) Public Reason and Courts
Daniel Behn, Szilárd Gáspar-Szilágyi, Malcolm Langford (eds.) Adjudicating Trade and Investment Disputes: Convergence or Divergence?
Sondre Torp Helmersen The Application of Teachings by the International Court of Justice
Daniel Behn, Ole Kristian Fauchald, Malcolm Langford (eds.) The Legitimacy of Investment Arbitration: Empirical Perspectives
Eric De Brabandere International Procedure in Interstate Litigation and Arbitration: A Comparative Approach
Chiara Giorgetti and Mark Pollack (eds.) Beyond Fragmentation: Cross-Fertilization, Cooperation and Competition among International Courts and Tribunals
Stavros Brekoulakis and Georgios Dimitropoulos (eds.) International Commercial Courts: The Future of Transnational Adjudication
RESEARCHING THE EUROPEAN COURT OF JUSTICE

Methodological Shifts and Law’s Embeddedness

Edited by

MIKAEI RASK MADSEN
University of Copenhagen

FERNANDA G. NICOLA
American University, Washington DC

ANTOINE VAUCHEZ
Pantheon-Sorbonne University
CONTENTS

Notes on Contributors vii

1 From Methodological Shifts to EU Law’s Embeddedness 1
   MIKAEL RASK MADSEN, FERNANDA G. NICOLA, AND ANTOINE VAUCHEZ

   PART I Cases: From Quantitative Analysis to Thick Descriptions

2 ‘In This Bureaucratic Silence EU Law Dies’: Fieldwork and the (Non)-Practice of EU Law in National Courts 27
   TOMMASO PAVONE

3 How to Nail Down a Cloud: CJEU’s Construction of Jurisprudential Authority from a Network Perspective 49
   AMALIE FRESE

4 EU Law Mobilization: Lessons from a Bottom-Up Approach 82
   JOS HOEVENAARS

5 Litigation Strategies and the Political Framing of EU Law: Exploring the Archives of a Trade Union Lawyer in the Viking and Laval Cases 105
   JULIEN LOUIS

   PART II Judicial Frames: Legal Concepts, Language, Procedures and Biographies

6 Inquiring into Conceptual Practices: Legal Controversy at the Court of Justice of the European Union 133
   VINCENT RÉVEILLÈRE
vi CONTENTS

7 Through the Lens of Language: Uncovering the Collaborative Nature of Advocates General’s Opinions 158
KAREN MCAULIFFE, LIANA MUNTEAN, AND VIRGINIA MATTIOLI

8 A Sense of Common Purpose: On the Role of Case Assignment and the Judge-Rapporteur at the European Court of Justice 187
CHRISTOPH KRENN

9 Judge Biographies as a Methodology to Grasp the Dynamics inside the CJEU and Its Relationship with EU Member States 209
VERA FRITZ

PART III Socio-legal Practices: Political, Linguistic, and Media Constructions

10 The Genesis of the Institution within the Institution: Studying the Mobilization for the Creation of the Court of First Instance 237
LOLA AVRIL

11 Reconstructing the Construction of Laval: Studying EU Law as a Social Interpretive Process 261
JENS ARNHOLTZ

12 Judicially-backed Mutation: Practices at the Legal Frontiers of the Eurozone Crisis 286
NICHOLAS HAAGENSEN

13 Media Attention for CJEU Case Law: Measurement, Data Collection, and Analysis of Case Salience Data 314
JULIAN DEDERKE

14 Conclusion: Embedding Decoloniality in Empirical EU Studies 343
IYIOLA SOLANKE

Index 354
NOTES ON CONTRIBUTORS

Editors’ Bios

Mikael Rask Madsen is a professor of European Law and Integration at the Faculty of Law, University of Copenhagen, and the founder and director of iCourts, the Danish National Research Foundation’s Centre of Excellence for International Courts. Trained as both a lawyer and a sociologist in Copenhagen and Paris, he has been a visitor at a number of universities, including Hertie School of Governance, Berlin, Université Paris 1-Sorbonne, Hebrew University, Jerusalem, University of Oslo, Université Robert Schuman, Strasbourg, Oxford University, and University of California, Berkeley. In his work, he has pioneered the sociology of international courts and law, as well as made key contributions to both theory and methodology of international socio-legal studies. His research interests include the globalization of law and the legal profession, and its effects on new forms of institutions such as international courts. Recent publications include International Court Authority (2018), co-edited with Karen Alter and Larry Helfer, ‘Between Universalism and Regional Law and Politics: A Comparative History of the American, European and African Human Rights Systems’, Icon – International Journal of Constitutional Law (2018), co-authored with Alexandra Huneeus, and ‘Backlash against International Courts: Explaining the Forms and Patterns of Resistance to International Courts’, International Journal of Law in Context (2018), co-authored with Pola Cebulak and Micha Wiebusch.

Fernanda G. Nicola is Professor of Law at the Washington College of Law, American University and she is the Director of the Program on International Organizations Law and Development and she is a permanent visiting professor at iCourts in Copenhagen. Her research and teaching interests are in European Union and Comparative Law, Transnational Legal Theory, and Law and Development. She received her PhD from Trento University and her SJD degree from Harvard Law School where she was the recipient of the Mancini Prize in European Law, and the Justice Welfare and Economics fellowship at the Weatherhead Center for International Affairs. Professor Nicola is a member of the American Society of Comparative Law (ASCL) and the International Academy of Comparative Law (IACL). She was a Fernand Braudel Senior Fellow at the European University Institute (EUI) and a visiting professor at LUISS in Rome. She wrote several articles in EU law, including Invisible Cities in Europe (2000); Critical Legal Histories in EU Law (2013); National Legal Traditions at Work in the Jurisprudence of the ECJ (2016); Legal Diplomacy in an Age of Authoritarianism (2021); and she co-edited the volume with Bill Davies, EU Law Stories: Contextual and Critical Histories of European Jurisprudence (2017).
NOTES ON CONTRIBUTORS

Antoine Vauchez is a CNRS research professor at the Centre européen de sociologie et de science politique (Université Paris 1-Sorbonne / CNRS) and a permanent visiting professor at iCourts in Copenhagen University. After receiving a PhD at the European University Institute (Florence), he has been a postdoctoral fellow at the American Bar Foundation (Northwestern University), a Marie Curie Fellow at the Robert Schuman Center (EUI), and a visiting professor in a variety of universities (Bocconi University, Copenhagen University, Columbia University, the Luiss in Rome and the International Institute for the Sociology of Law in Spain, NYU Jean Monnet Center). Over the years, he has engaged in critical sociology of law and historical sociology, researching extensively fields such as international courts, judicial politics and lawyering in relation to transnational politics and the European Union. His publications cover a variety of disciplinary fields including law (European Law Journal, Law and Social Inquiry), sociology (American Journal of Sociology, International Political Sociology), and political science (European Political Science Research, Revue française de science politique). His most recent book in the field (Democratizing Europe, published in French, German, and English) brings to a close a series of three books on law, politics and democracy in the European Union, following an edited volume (with B. de Witte), Lawyering Europe: Brokering Europe: Euro-Lawyers and the Making of a Transnational Polity (Cambridge University Press, 2015).
Contributors’ Bios

Jens Arnholtz is an associate professor at the Department of Sociology, University of Copenhagen, where he also obtained his PhD. His research interests lie in the construction of a European labour market as a multifaceted process involving actual cross-border labour mobility, Europeanization of national labour market institutions and the development of EU regulation with relation to labour markets. He has a special interest in the issue of posted workers as a test case of EU instituted labour mobility, and he is currently co-editing a book entitled Posted Work in the European Union: The Political Economy of Free Movement. His research has appeared in journals like Work, Employment and Society, British Journal of Industrial Relations, European Journal of Industrial Relations, and Journal of European Social Policy.

Lola Avril is a Research associate at the law department of the European University Institute in Florence. She holds a PhD in political science (Université Paris 1 Panthéon-Sorbonne, 2019). Her research interests lie at the intersection of the history of European law, European public policy analysis, and the sociology of professions. Her dissertation traces the formation of a group of European legal professionals in a co-constitution process with the building of the Regulatory State. Lola is a founding member of the Research Group on the European Union (GrUE) in France and a member of the steering committee of the History of European Integration Research Society (HEIRS). She was a teaching assistant in courses on European institutions (Sciences Po Paris), comparative political science (Université Paris 1 Panthéon-Sorbonne), and international relations (Université Paris-Dauphine).

Julian Dederke (MSc) is a PhD candidate at the Center for Comparative and International Studies at the Swiss Federal Institute of Technology (ETH Zurich). He studied political science at the Free University of Berlin and European Studies including EU law at the University of Gothenburg. From August to October 2018, he was a visiting researcher at the iCourts Centre of Excellence in Copenhagen. Julian teaches classes in European integration and international relations on bachelor and master level and workshops in Quantitative Data and Web Data Collection for legal studies. Julian’s work focuses on the field of judicial politics, reactions to decisions of the CJEU, and the interplay of politics and courts in general. His current project deals with the public
NOTES ON CONTRIBUTORS

Amalie Frese holds a doctoral degree in law from University of Copenhagen, Faculty of law where she was affiliated with Centre of Excellence for International Courts (iCourts) and from Université Paris 1-Sorbonne. In her doctoral thesis Amalie investigated The Court of Justice of the European Union’s and The European Court of Human Right’s decision-making practices in the area of anti-discrimination law. She was a postdoctoral researcher at the Faculty of Law, University of Vienna, with The Carlsberg Foundation’s internationalization grant, Junior Core Fellow at the Institute for Advanced Study at Central European University and presently holds the Danish Research Council Internationalization Postdoc at the European University Institute in Florence. Her current research focuses on the challenges from economic inequality to European and international economic law.

Vera Fritz holds a PhD in contemporary history from the University of Aix-Marseille and is currently a Marie Sklodowska-Curie Fellow at the University of Copenhagen. She is part of an international network of historians which has aimed at writing a ‘New’ History of European law based on empirical material gathered from national and private archives of the founding member states of the EU and beyond. Her research lays a particular focus on the role of the judges of the European Court of Justice in the integration process. Her monograph Juges et avocats généraux de la Cour de Justice de l’Union européenne, 1952–1972 (2018) investigates the personal and professional trajectories of the judges who are known to have ‘constitutionalized’ the European legal order in the 1960s and 1970s. Through an exploration of their selection processes and political affiliations, her work proposes new answers to the question of how the judges managed to convince national decision makers to accept their groundbreaking jurisprudence.

Nicholas Haagensen is a Postdoctoral researcher at iCourts, Center of Excellence for International Courts at the University of Copenhagen. Nicholas studies the socio-legal aspects of the macro-economy of Europe and the governance of the Eurozone, particularly the role of lawyers and courts in economic and monetary policy. His interests lie at the intersection of the sociology of law and the sociology of professions. Currently, he is working on a book manuscript based on his PhD, as well as doing quantitative research on changes in the Danish legal profession. He successfully defended his double-PhD degree in Political & Social Sciences (from Université Libre de Bruxelles) and Political Economy (from Copenhagen Business School) under the GEMSTONES framework in June 2020. His PhD looks at how lawyers intervened in the politically contentious policy response to the Eurozone crisis and their strategies to protect the EU legal order internally while enabling an international law crisis management framework externally, where accountability for the imposition of highly intrusive policies on citizens remains uncertain and problematic.

Jos Hoevenaars is currently a postdoc researcher at the Erasmus School of Law, Erasmus University Rotterdam, part of the team of the ERC funded ‘Building EU Civil Justice’ project, working on the subproject Self-Representation in Civil Justice. This project scrutinizes the self-representation trend against the background of access to justice. Combining normative, comparative, and (primarily qualitative) empirical research, it assesses the developments in self-representation, evaluates how self-representation changes procedural dynamics between courts and parties, as well as, the repercussions for the effectiveness of litigation and procedural justice as components of access to justice. Jos holds a masters degree in sociology from Erasmus University in Rotterdam. He worked as a researcher and lecturer at the Institute for Sociology of Law and the Centre for Migration Law of the Radboud University Nijmegen. In 2018, he successfully defended his PhD thesis on private party litigation before the Court of Justice of the European Union at the Radboud University Nijmegen. His research interests include among others: law and politics, private party litigation, the legal profession, and strategic litigation.

Christoph Krenn is an APART-GSK Fellow of the Austrian Academy of Sciences and a Senior Research Affiliate at the Max Planck Institute for Comparative Public Law and International Law in Heidelberg. His PhD, which he wrote at the Max Planck Institute, is forthcoming in 2022 with Cambridge University Press in the Cambridge Studies in European Law and Policy series. The book is entitled ‘The Procedural and Organisational Law of the European Court of Justice. An Incomplete Transformation’. Before joining the Max Planck Institute in 2011, Christoph studied in Graz and Paris and interned for six months at the European Court of Justice in Luxembourg. He works and publishes in the Julien Louis holds a PhD in Political Science from the University of Strasbourg (2019) and is currently a postdoctoral researcher at the Laboratory SAGE (Societies, Actors and Government in Europe) in the same university. His PhD thesis deals with the legal and judicial strategies of the European Trade Union Confederation. His areas of research cover the sociology of EU Law, the history of European (European Union, Council of Europe) and international (International Labor Organization) social policies, and the study of the European trade unions’ transnational mobilizations. He recently published « Construire sa propre défaite. Les affaires Viking et Laval, un échec judiciaire pour la Confédération européenne des syndicats », Droit et Société, n°107, 2021, p. 181–199 and, with Marco Rocca, « Les Manifestes pour une Europe sociale. Eliane Vogel-Polsky et ses compagnons de route », E-Legal. Revue de droit et de criminologie de l’ULB, n°3, 2020, p. 1–33.

Virginia Mattioli is a Translation Studies scholar. She received her BA degree from the Autonomous University of Barcelona (UAB) and her MA and PhD degree from the University Jaume I of Castellon de la Plana, with a thesis on a corpus-based comparison of foreign words and otherness acceptance between translated and travel novels. She worked as a Research Assistant for the University of Birmingham and as Associate Professor in Translation Studies at the Pontifical Catholic University of Valparaiso (PUCV). Her research interests include cultural, literary and legal translation, corpus-based studies, cultural studies and sociolinguistics.

Professor Karen McAuliffe is a Professor of Law and Language, and a Birmingham Fellow at the University of Birmingham School of Law, UK. She is also a fellow of the Robert Schuman Institute of European Affairs at the University of Luxembourg. Dr McAuliffe’s principle area of expertise is in the relationship between law and language and in particular the impact that multilingualism and translation can have on the development of EU and international law. She has published extensively in the field of law and language and has led a number of large funded projects which scrutinise processes and procedures at the Court of Justice of the European Union, including the ERC-funded project: Law and Language at the European Court of Justice. Find out more about Prof McAuliffe’s research at: www.karenmcauliffe.com.
NOTES ON CONTRIBUTORS

Liana Muntean is an Information and Analysis Officer at the European Union Agency for Asylum. Dr Muntean holds an LL.M. and a PhD in comparative constitutional law from Central European University in Budapest, Hungary. She has previously worked as a Research Associate at the University of Birmingham, on the ‘Law and Language at the European Court of Justice’ project. She has also worked as a lawyer for the European Court of Human Rights in Strasbourg and has been involved in human rights research projects. Her areas of interest include asylum law, comparative constitutional law and human rights law (the prohibition of torture in interrogations, fair trial rights, and conditions of detention). The research for Dr Muntean’s chapter in this volume was carried out before she joined the European Union Agency for Asylum, and the views expressed therein are her own and do not reflect those of the Agency.

Tommaso Pavone is Assistant Professor of law and politics in the School of Government and Public Policy at the University of Arizona, where he researches and teaches how lawyers and courts impact social and political change. He is the author of The Ghostwriters: Lawyers and the Politics Behind the Judicial Construction of Europe (Cambridge University Press, 2022), which overturns the conventional narrative of European legal integration by revealing how this process unfolded as a struggle between judges who resisted European law and lawyers who pushed them to embrace change. His work has been published in leading peer-reviewed journals and has won the best dissertation prizes from the Law and Society Association (LSA) and the European Union Studies Association (EUSA), alongside the Edward S. Corwin Award from the American Political Science Association (APSA) for best dissertation in public law. He holds a Ph.D. in politics from Princeton University.

Vincent Réveillère is an associate professor of law at Aix-Marseille University (member of the Laboratoire de Théorie du Droit). He is currently lecturing in legal theory and in European law. He completed his PhD at the European University Institute in Florence. His thesis is published in French as Le juge et le travail des concepts juridiques: le cas de la citoyenneté de l’Union européenne (Institut Universitaire Varenne – LGDJ 2018). In the field of EU Law, he has recently published ‘Family Rights for Naturalized EU Citizens: Lounes’ (2018) 55 Common Market Law Review 1855. In the field of legal theory, he is interested in the institution of legal knowledge, which he studies using insights from anthropology and Robert Brandom’s philosophy.

Iyiola Solanke is Professor of European Union Law and Social Justice within the University of Leeds Law School. She is a former visiting professor at the Harvard University School of Public Health and Fernand Braudel Fellow at the European University Institute. She is the author of EU Law (forthcoming, Cambridge University Press, 2022), Making Anti-Racial Discrimination Law (2011), and Discrimination as Stigma: A Theory of Anti-Discrimination Law (2017) as well as many articles in peer reviewed journals. Professor Solanke is an Academic Bencher of the Inner Temple and founder of the Black Female Professors Forum, which promotes the visibility and progress of Black women in academia. She recently chaired the Inquiry into the History of Eugenics at UCL and is currently PI on two projects: an ESRC project looking into the impact of COVID on practices for wellbeing and resilience in Black, Asian and minority ethnic families and communities and an OfS/RE funded project on access and success of BAME female PG researchers. In April 2021 she was appointed one of the two inaugural University Deans for Equality, Diversity and Inclusion.