

Contents

Acknowledgements	page ix
Introduction	I
From 'Imagined' to 'Inoperative' Communities	10
1 Nazism as Allegory in Argentine Fiction: From Dictatorship to Neoliberalism in El comienzo de la primavera by Patricio Pron and Wakolda by Lucía Puenzo	16
The Function of Allegory	18
From Subalternity and the Nation-State to Gender and Neoliberalism	26
The Argentine Hour of Eugenics	30
A Patagonian Point-of-Contact	38
Dolls: Female Socialisation and Capitalist Clock-Time	44
2 Nazism and Borges: Contemporary Re-readings by Roberto Bolaño and Marcos Peres	52
Heretical Contemporary Re-writings: The Anxiety of Influence	61
Democratic Conspiracies	69
Borges Multiplied	73
Fascism and Resistance	78
The Ethics of the 'Face'	82
3 Myth Interrupted: Identity and the Absence of Nation in En busca de Klingsor by Jorge Volpi and Amphitryon by Ignacio Padilla	95
Mexican Myths	100
The Novel as Myth, Language and Structure	104
Interrupting the Myth	111
Premature Post-Mexicanity?	116

4	Sovereignty, Democracy and ‘Nonsufficiency’ through Touch in Los informantes by Juan Gabriel Vásquez and Diário da Queda by Michel Laub	125
	Trauma and Memory Studies	127
	Second-Generation Postmemory, Third-Generation Forgetting	131
	Sovereign Father, Democratic Son	141
	Touch As a ‘Setting-in-motion’	150
	Community Revealed in Death and Birth	155
	Epilogue	160
	Bibliography	164
	Index	178