THE BROTHERS GRIMM AND THE MAKING OF GERMAN NATIONALISM

In the first comprehensive English-language portrait of Jacob and Wilhelm Grimm as political thinkers and actors, Jakob Norberg reveals how history’s two most famous folklorists envisioned the role of literary and linguistic scholars in defining national identity. Convinced of the political relevance of their folktale collections and grammatical studies, the brothers Grimm argued that they could help disentangle language groups from one another, redraw the boundaries of states in Europe, and counsel kings and princes on the proper extent and character of their rule. They sought not only to recover and revive a neglected native culture for a contemporary audience but also to facilitate a more harmonious and enduring relationship between the traditional political elite and an emerging national collective. Through close historical analysis, Norberg reconstructs how the Grimms wished to mediate between sovereigns and peoples, politics and culture.

Jakob Norberg is Associate Professor of German Studies at Duke University. He is the author of Sociability and Its Enemies: German Political Thought After 1945 (2014) and numerous articles in journals such as PMLA, Cultural Critique, Textual Practice, New German Critique, Zeitschrift für deutsche Philologie, and Sprache und Literatur.
THE BROTHERS GRIMM
AND THE MAKING OF GERMAN NATIONALISM

JAKOB NORBERG
Duke University
Till barnen
Contents

Acknowledgments viii

Introduction 1

1 The Philologist King: Politics and Knowledge in the Nationalist Era 22

2 Folk Hatred and Folktales: The Nationalist Politics of the Children’s and Household Tales 51

3 The Prince of Germany: Wilhelm Grimm and the Philologist as Redeemer 85

4 Love of the Fatherland and Fatherly Love: Jacob Grimm’s Political Thought 114

5 The Mother Tongue at School: Jacob Grimm and the Institutions of Nation Building 142

6 The Names of the Barbarians: The Philologist, the Tribe, and the Empire 159

Conclusion 181

Notes 186
Bibliography 227
Index 247
Acknowledgments

The Volkswagen Foundation funded the initial research for this book, and it was completed during research leaves from Duke University. Colleagues at Duke were immensely helpful. Stefani Engelstein gave invaluable advice and encouragement. Julianne Werlin provided unceasing intellectual inspiration. Heidi Madden at Perkins Library speedily resolved numerous difficulties. Thomas Pfau, Henry Pickford, and Kata Gellen were models of collegiality and generosity. My work also profited greatly from conversations with several scholars at other universities and research centers, including Gabriel Trop, Eric Downing, Karen Hagemann, and Konrad Jarausch (Chapel Hill); Matthew Birkhold and May Mergenthaler (Ohio); Natalie Binczek and Dorothea Walzer (Bochum); Arnd Wedemeyer (Berlin), Till van Rahden (Montréal), Iwan-Michelangelo d'Aprile and Vinzenz Hoppe (Potsdam); Till Dembeck (Luxembourg); John Noyes (Toronto); Fritz Breithaupt (Indiana); Bill Donahue (Notre Dame); Michael Jennings (Princeton); and Jeffrey Hertel (Hillsdale). For their friendship, I thank Iyman Ahmed, Priscilla Layne, and Chandra Wright.