INDEX

1911 revolution, 22
efforts by foreign banks to first remain neutral and then support Yuan Shikai, 190, 206, 208, 210 role of banks in maintaining stability, 197–199, 200, 201–204, 223, 225 as a turning point in Chinese foreign borrowing, 190, 225, 228, 268

Addis, Charles Stewart (1861–1945), 196, 197, 250
direct financial help for Yuan rejected by, 207
proposal for collecting revenue allocated as loan security by ‘officials of the Chinese Government’, 216
reassuring reports on Customs funds sent to investors by, 201 reforming of the salt gabelle proposed by, 213, 214n104

Adelman, Jeremy, 15n40. agency (office of foreign banks) Agenturen (agencies) distinguished from Filialen (branches), 60 defined, 60n15 agency of Chinese actors. See Chinese actors and Chinese agency

Aglen, Francis Arthur (1869–1932), 200f5.5, 201
plan to deposit Customs revenue at the HSBC, 120, 123, 125, 128, 133, 199

Agra Bank, 104, 106

Akagawa Motoaki 赤川元章, 7n24,
8, 243n39

Barth, Boris, 7n23, 53n135, 130n94, 184n142, 243n38
Bergère, Marie-Claire, 271n11 Bethge, Karl
as agent for Deutsche Bank and the Disconto-Gesellschaft, 46, 47
study mission to China (1886), 43, 45 Bismarck, Otto von establishing a German bank in China supported by, 39–40, 47, 48, 50, 51, 76
Seminar for Oriental Languages established by, 163

Bland, John Otway Percy (1863–1945), 166 loan negotiations for the Tianjin–Pukou railway, 179

Bleichröder bank, 48, 51, 116

Board of Communications (Youchuanbu 郵傳部), 183

Boxer Indemnity

Customs revenue pledged for the payment of, 176, 199–200 foreign negotiations about the payment mechanism for, 147 payments by the DAB for the German share of, 252, 253, 255 severing of deposits to the DAB for payments owed by Chinese government, 257

Brandt, Loren, Ma Debin 馬德斌, and Thomas G. Rawski, 18
Brandt, Max von, 39f1.4
establishing a German bank in China
supported by, 40, 46
loan negotiations with the Chinese government, 41, 158
Oppenheim’s (Simon Alfred) meeting with, 24
British and Chinese Corporation (BCC) interests represented by the Chinese Central Railways (CCR), 166 negotiations for the Tianjin–Pukou railway, 160 Brötel, Dieter, 47n103, 135n119, 192n8 Brüssel, Julius, 114, 127, 137
Burchard, Franz von, 48, 50, 51
Buse, Johann, 96
Cain, P. J. and A. G. Hopkins, 111n5 Cameron, Ewen as London manager of the HSBC, 123, 137
Campbell, James Duncan, 114, 134, 135, 140
Casson, Mark, 14n36
Chen Guangfu 陳光甫, 4 Cheng Linsun 程麟蓀, 18n51, 103–104n165, 247n52, 247n54, 271n12
China’s public finance acceleration of China’s dependence on foreign capital by the Reorganisation Loan, 225 and the assessment of sovereign risk, 132 China’s lack of a functioning market for public debt, 19, 33–34, 268, 270 and the Chinese Maritime Customs Service, 33, 147 domestic bonds issued to raise money, 224, 225, 269 as a factor in the Chinese decision to join the Allies, 231, 256 increase in foreign borrowing and engagement with foreign capital markets following the Sino-Japanese War of 1894/5, 2, 13, 54, 112, 268 and the role of foreign banks in China. See Customs revenue; foreign banks in China Zeng Jize 曾紀澤 on China’s borrowing money from its people, 34
Chinese actors and Chinese agency. See also Hu Yufen; Li Hongzhang; Liang Dunyan; Liang Ruhao; Sheng Xuanhuai; Tang Shaoyi; transnational networks; Weng Tonghe; Zhang Zhidong competition and changing power relations exploited by, 8, 47, 192, 266 and the dependence of foreign banks on qianzhuang banks and their compradors, 87–88, 91–93, 106–107 diminishment following the fall of the Qing, 186 foreign supervision over Chinese finance limited by, 219 inadequacy of Western-language scholarship to account for Chinese agency, 7, 6–7, 7n23 role in the operations of the DAB, 23, 159, 270 structural power of foreign financiers and markets challenged by, 111, 118, 131, 139, 144 transnational lending by Chinese banks, 276 Chinese General Railway Company (Zhongguo tielu zonggongsi 中國鐵路總公司), 157 Chinese Maritime Customs Service. See also Customs revenue China’s public finance facilitated by, 33, 136, 147 collection of lijin by, 133, 136, 138, 139 Hart’s management of, 44, 113, 115 reports on China’s Customs revenue published by, 132 Chinese Ministry of Foreign Affairs. See Zongli Yamen; Waiwubu Chinese nationalism and economic globalization in the late nineteenth and early twentieth centuries, 15 in the republican period, 5, 218 the railway rights recovery movement, 151, 170, 173, 177, 183n138, 184 Commercial Bank of China (Zhongguo Tongshang Yinhang 中國通商銀行), 135

© in this web service Cambridge University Press & Assessment www.cambridge.org compradors
individual compradors. See Xu Chunrong

Comptoir D'Escompte de Paris failure of, 104, 106 operation in China before the 1890s, 33n28 reorganization as Comptoir National D'Escompte, 70, 97, 133, 212, 213, 214, 218n122n122 Wallich's association with, 27

Cordes, Heinrich (1866–1927), 164f4.4, 198f5.4
background of, 164
on the China-friendly policy of the Four Groups Consortium, 217 concerns about China's instability expressed, 206 impact of anti-German sentiments during the First World War on, 258, 274, 276 loan negotiations for the Tianjin–Pukou railway, 163, 169, 172, 173, 176, 179 plan to use financial means to keep China out of the First World War, 254 trajectory of his life after the First World War, 265

Cottu syndicate
loans requested by the Qing Ministry of Finance, 207

Customs revenue
the Central Bank of China as the custodian bank of, 271 as collateral for foreign bonds during the republican period, 4 as collateral for foreign borrowing, 4, 144, 199 domestic bonds issued to raise money, 225 evaluation of China as a sovereign borrower when Customs revenue was no longer available, 21, 133, 147, 176, 177 severing of deposits to the DAB for loan and Boxer Indemnity payments owed by the Chinese government, 257

Dean, Austin, 13n35

Dernburg, Bernhard, 235n22, 246

Deutsch-Asiatische Bank (Dehua Yinhang 德華銀行, DAB), 165, See also Buse, Johann; Cordes, Heinrich; Eggeling, Alfred; Figge, Heinz; Kalb, Moritz; Rehders, Emil; Rinkel, Ferdinand; Urbig, Franz

Akagawa's study of, 7n24, 243n39 attempt to use financial means to keep China out of the war, 254 bank notes issued by, 234 bills of exchange in reichsmark in China, 72 competition with other foreign banks, 20, 47 compradors for. See Xu Chunrong criticism by the German government for its preference for economic over political goals, 243 establishment of, 20, 25, 52, 55 failure due to China's declaration of war against Germany (1917), 22 and the formation of the Four Groups Consortium, 197, 198f5.4
the German government as an accelerating and unifying force backing it, 25, 40, 49, 50, 54, 76, 269 and the internationalization of the banking sector of the treaty ports, 22 liquidation of, 259–261, 260f6.8 as a private bank controlled by its founding banks, 25, 52, 54 report to the DAB's supervisory board, 76 role in the financing of China's import and export trade, 66f2.3, 67–70 role of Chinese actors and Chinese agency in the operations of, 23, 159, 270 Shanghai branch of, 96, 97f2.8, 238 trade finance as the focus of the bank's business, 67n41, 74, 95n156
INDEX

First World War as the turning point for, 229–230
Deutsch-Asiatische Bank (Dehua Yinhang德華銀行, DAB) –
Executive Board (Vorstand) DAB directors as full or deputy members of, 59n9, 96 impact of the 1911 revolution on China and the Chinese economy assessed by, 188 loss caused by the DAB’s liquidation reported to its shareholders (1928), 260 the supervisory board’s appointment of members of, 58
Deutsch-Asiatische Bank (Dehua Yinhang德華銀行, DAB) –
Supervisory Board (Aufsichtsrat)
Business advantages of the composition of its supervisory board, 76 business of the post-war years as a ‘constant concern’ for, 260 control of business conducted in China, 60 and DAB statutes, 59
Dernburg as a member of, 235n22, 246
Rinkel selected as the DAB’s first director by, 59
Urbig as head of, 80, 200, 229 Deutsche Bank
agent in China. See Bethge, Karl directors of. See Hansemann, Adolph von; Urbig, Franz discussions to establish a German bank in China, 48 efforts to expand to China, 30
as a shareholder in the DAB, 52
Duan Qirui段祺瑞 (1865–1936), 255–256, 256f5.6 Eggeling, Alfred
impact of anti-German sentiments during the First World War on, 250, 258 newspapers read to remain current with developments in Europe, 246, 251 on Cordes’ strategy of financial aid to keep China out of the First World War, 255 Ellert, Arnold, 61
Erich, Curt
collection of lijin by the Customs Service facilitated by, 136 on the selection of a director for the DAB in China, 59
study mission to China (1886), 43, 44–46
Exner, August Heinrich
on assessing the financial condition of China, 132, 133 German investors advised on Chinese bonds by, 109 study mission to China (1886), 43, 46
Figge, Heinz (1865–1921), 63, 232, 232f6.1
First World War
development of multinational enterprises on power equilibrium and consensus about transnational cooperation in treaty ports revealed by, 270 the Five Groups Consortium rendered defunct by, 249 political risk to German bankers associated with the outbreak of, 16 public trust in foreign banks eroded by, 247, 271 First World War (cont.)
as the turning point in the DAB’s history, 230, 247, 249, 252 weakening of transnational flows of commodities and capital by, 186, 250, 262, 264 Five Groups Consortium rendered defunct by the First World War, 258 Flandreau, Marc and Frédéric Zumer, 132 Focke, Johann Heinrich, 30 foreign banks in China belief in their stability and trustworthiness (in comparison with Chinese banks), 5, 80, 81 criticism of foreign banks in terms of imperialist domination of China, 5, 6, 8 diffusion of their structural power, 111, 118, 131, 139, 144 dominance in the banking sector of treaty ports, 6, 103 efforts to break away from Eurocentric interpretations of China’s economic development, 4 emergence of, 1 expansion of foreign banking in China before the First World War, 4, 99–102, 2.2, 103, 104n166 extraterritoriality as legal advantage for, 80, 92, 106 individual banks. See Agra Bank; Comptoir D’Escompte de Paris; Deutsch-Asiatische Bank (Dehua Yinhang 德華銀行, DAB); Deutsche Bank; Disconto-Gesellschaft; Hong Kong and Shanghai Banking Corporation (HSBC); New Oriental Banking Corporation; Yokohama Specie Bank (Yokohama Shōkin Ginkō 横浜正金銀行) (YSB) as intermediary institutions facilitating China’s integration into the global economy, 1, 4, 19, 69, 76, 107, 267 the openness of Chinese officials to using foreign capital as a factor, 26, 37, 54 the organizational structure of Yokohama Specie Bank as a model of the general structure of, 64/2.2, 65–67 the position of foreign banks in the Chinese banking sector today, 275 risks. See risks of operating a foreign bank in scholarship by Western historians of China, 3 suppression of the normal development of capitalism in China as a factor, 6, 270 foreign trade in China the DAB’s role in the financing of import and export trade, 66/2.3, 67–70 Four Groups Consortium ‘officials of the Chinese Government’ required to collect revenue allocated as loan security, 216 Beijing representative for the DAB. See Cordes, Heinrich Beijing representative for the HSBC. See Hillier, Edward Guy on the China-friendly policy of the Four Groups Consortium, 217 incorporation of five financial groups. See Five Groups Consortium political risk managed by, 216 the Qing government’s request for an advance, 205–207 Russo-Japanese policy of exploitation managed by, 217 Yuan Shikai’s requests for support from, 205–207, 212 frontier. See also Tianjin as a ‘contact zone’, 9, 12, 55, 153, 266 East Asia viewed as ‘wild frontier zone’ (by Henriot and Bickers), 10 as a ‘middle ground’, 10

INDEX

Cambridge University Press & Assessment
978-1-316-51703-1 — Foreign Banks and Global Finance in Modern China Ghassan Moazzin
Index
More Information

© in this web service Cambridge University Press & Assessment www.cambridge.org
INDEX

Gardella, Robert, 17
German banks. See also Bleichröder;
Deutsch-Asiatische Bank (Dehua Yinhang 德華銀行, DAB); Konsortium für Asiatische Geschäfte (Konsortium for Asiatic Business) (KfAG); Norddeutsche Bank; Seehandlungsgesellschaft; Warschauer group first Chinese loan issued on the German capital market (1887), 47, 118 German government. See also Bismarck, Otto von; Brandt, Max von economic nationalism advocated by, 243 establishing a German bank in China supported by, 15, 51 law requiring stock companies to have stock capital in German reichsmark, 46 measures pursued to strengthen commerce abroad, 40, 46 Schenck von Schweinsberg’s negotiations for the second indemnity loan, 114, 123, 124, 126, 127, 128 globalization. See also internationalization of Chinese finance; transnational networks new technologies of transportation and communication supporting large-scale global trade and capital flows, 2n2 the opportunity of its perspective identified by van de Ven, 3 role of Chinese banks in the global financial system today, 276 role of multinational enterprise as facilitators of, 3, 19 tensions with nationalism, 15 transnational networks as crucial elements of, 14, 20, 23, 57, 105, 186 Great Divergence origins and persistence of, 19, 271

Hammacher, Friedrich, 43 Hansemann, Adolph von, 31f/1.2
capital for China’s war indemnity payment discussed as a member of the DAB’s supervisory board, 114 Chinese railway construction and government loans for China discussed with the German consul in Shanghai, 30 death in 1903, 231
interest in China, 30
Hao Yanping 郝延平, 17, 84, 108
Hart, Robert
collection of lijin by the Customs Service facilitated by, 136, 138, 139 concerns about China’s indemnity payments, 113, 126, 128
death in 1911, 199
deterioration of China’s credit explained to Weng Tonghe, 140
He Wenkai, 18
Henriot, Christian and Robert Bickers, 10
Hillier, Edward Guy, 120f/3.1
friendship with Cordes, 250 as HSBC representative of the Four Groups Consortium, 198f/5.4
negotiation of the indemnity loans for the HSBC, 119–120, 123, 125, 128, 133, 137 Hintze, Paul, 252, 254, 256
Hong Jiaguan 洪葭管, 5, 6
Hong Kong and Shanghai Banking Corporation (HSBC). See also Addis, Charles; Hillier, Edward Guy Cameron as London manager of, 123
and the formation of the Four Groups Consortium, 197, 198f/5.4 King’s history of, 6
location on the Bund, 97f/2.9
Horesh, Niv, 9, 18n51, 67–68n44
Hu Yufen 胡燏棻, 156f/4.2
Beijing–Hankou railway line supported by, 156 rivalry with Sheng Xuanhui, 159
Sino-British-German transnational network facilitated by, 159, 185 Huenemann, Ralph William, 152 indemnity payments failure of the planned large Chinese loan [uniting all European financial interests], 117 for the Boxer Rebellion. See Boxer Indemnity imposition on China by Japan after the Sino-Japanese war of 1894/5, 110 internationalization of Chinese public finance due to borrowing by the Chinese state, 2, 13, 112, 113 the Qing government’s financial burden impacted by, 22 indemnity payments – First Indemnity Loan (Franco-Russian Loan of 1895) Anglo-German loan negotiations temporarily halted by, 119 competition among foreign financiers and diplomats in China, 112 interest rate of, 122
issuing of, 110
indemnity payments – Second Indemnity Loan issuing of, 110, 148
loan offer and final terms, 131/3.1 negotiations by the Zongli Yamen, 112, 119–121, 126–128 Seehandlungsgesellschaft as a payment agent for, 130 signing of, 131
indemnity payments – Third Indemnity Loan final net price of, 140 identification of new securities for, 112, 139 impact of political instability and time pressure on Chinese negotiators, 131, 138, 144, 146, 266
issuing of, 110, 141
signing of, 138
international banks. See foreign banks internationalization of Chinese finance. See also globalization acceleration related to indemnity loan negotiations between 1895 and 1898, 112 development of Chinese banks during the republican period, 13, 275 foreign banks as intermediary institutions, 1, 4, 11–12, 23, 56 role of Chinese actors and Chinese agency. See Chinese actors and Chinese agency role of Chinese actors and Chinese agency, 23 in the years preceding the Second World War, 247, 265, 271, 272
Jones, Geoffrey, 2
Kalb, Moritz
Chinese foreign trade and trade finance emphasized in his initial report to the supervisory board, 67n41 establishment of a DAB branch in Tianjin advised by, 112 on financing non-British trade, 73–74 report on the Shanghai banking sector, 88, 91–92 risk assessment for the DAB, 69 selection as Rinkel’s advisor, 59
Xu Chunrong selected as comprador for the DAB, 81, 88
Kanada Shinji, 32–33n28
Karbe, Erich, 61, 96
King, Frank H. H., 6, 37n53, 60n15, 118n41, 130n94, 272n19
Kirby, William C., 3, 12, 261
Konsortium für Asiatische Geschäfte (Consortium for Asiatic Business) (KfAG), 53, 118, 136, 203, 205 Cordes as representative of, 163
establishment of, 52
financial support for the Qing by, 205
Li Enhan 李恩涵, 161n50, 183n138
Li Hongzhang 李鴻章, 35f.3
Beijing–Qingjiang railway supported by, 154 Chinese railway construction advocated by, 35, 42, 154 first Chinese loan on the German capital market contracted by, 47 German banks in China discussed with Oppenheim (Simon Alfred), 24 Hooley-Jamieson syndicate determined as unreliable, 134–136 negotiations for the Anglo-German Loan of 1898, 138 Prince Chun as his ally at the Board of Naval Affairs (Haijun yamen 海軍衙門), 42 unsuccessful Dudgeon-Wilson deal, 134 Liang Dunyan 梁敦彦 (1857–1924), 167f4.7
background of, 167
loan negotiations for the Tianjin–Pukou railway, 166, 173, 181 Liang Ruhao 梁如浩
loan negotiations for the Tianjin–Pukou railway, 166, 167, 168–169 lilin. See taxes – lilin 釐金 Ma Jianzhong 马建忠, 37
Ma Yinchu 马寅初, 4
Malik, Hassan, 144
Mammelsdorf, Julius
proposal for Deutsche Bank’s expansion to East Asia, 28
McElderry, Andrea, 79n93
Messing, Otto, 61
Morrison, George E., 250
Müller-Jabusch, Maximilian on the composition of the DAB’s supervisory board, 76n81 on the DAB’s attempt to use financial means to keep China out of the war, 252–253n76 Münch, Hermann, 30
Nanjing decade, 224
nationalism adverse conditions for German bankers resulting for anti-German sentiments during the First World War, 258 in China. See Chinese nationalism transnational collaboration disrupted by the First World War, 250
New Oriental Banking Corporation, 104, 106
Nishimura Shizuya 西村閑也, 8, 79–80n93, 87n124, 91, 103n165, 192n8 Norddeutsche Bank, 72
discussions to establish a German bank in China, 48
Oppenheim, Eduard von DAB joined by, 51
Oppenheim, Simon Alfred von establishment of a German bank in China promoted to his father by, 25 travels to China, 24
piaohao 票號
lack of reliable data on, 104 limited contact with foreign banks, 77 unsuccessful attempt by the He Sheng Yuan piaohao to establish a Chinese bank branch outside of China, 76n85 Pratt, Mary Louise
on the frontier as a ‘contact zone’, 9 Provisional Government
foreign loans received by, 209 public finance of China. See China’s public finance qianzhuang 錢莊 dependence of foreign banks on, 87, 93 higher risk represented by, 88, 93
lack of reliable data on, 104 role as suppliers of credit for Chinese merchants involved in China’s foreign trade, 77 Qing dynasty. See also Boxer Indemnity; taxes – lilin 釐金 fiscal problems confronted by, 22, 33, 205, 208 Qing dynasty (cont.)

high cost of reform efforts of, 13 impact of its collapse on China and the Chinese economy assessed by the executive board of the DAB, 188 lack of a functioning market for public debt, 19, 33–34, 269, 270 Prince Chun’s (Chun Qinwang 醇親王) interest in the construction of railways, 42 rapid internationalization of Chinese finance during, 223 Xinzheng (新政; New Policies), 150, 151, 161, 190, 193, 268 railway development in China addressed by Zhang Zhidong in his quanzue pian (勸學篇), 150 the frontier as a space for dreams rather than actual realization, 187 German interest in, 24, 151, 159 importance of transnational networks in contact zones on the Chinese frontier for the realization of, 153, 173, 186 Li Hongzhang’s interest in, 35
Sheng Xuanhuai, Zhang Zhidong and Wang Wenshao placed in charge of, 157 railway loans for the Tianjin–Pukou railway. See Tianjin–Pukou railway loan plan to use railways as collateral for loans developed by Zhang Zhidong and Sheng Xuanhuai, 157, 175 Rehders, Emil as director of the DAB in China, 95, 96, 128 Reiß, August, 67, 68–69n45 relational power of individual actors Chinese officials’ use of, 111, 131, 144 Strange’s distinction between ‘relational power’ and ‘structural power’, 111
Reorganisation Loan

China’s dependence on foreign capital increased by, 225 government borrowing accelerated by, 225 impact of the First World War on, 249 proceeds to be used for fiscal reform hoped for, 212, 223 proceeds used for domestic debt repayment, 212, 224 reformation of the salt administration, 219, 223 salt revenue used as security for, 212, 213, 214 signing of, 218, 220f5.11 weak performance of bonds for, 221, 222f5.14 republican period (1911–49)

Customs revenue used as collateral for domestic bonds during, 225 effect of the 1911 revolution on Chinese bond prices, 225 factors contributing to the acceleration of foreign borrowing during, 13 financial challenges confronted by, 212 internationalization of Chinese banks during, 275 rise of Chinese nationalism during, 5, 218 Rinkel, Ferdinand as DAB’s first director in China, 59 financing of non-British trade explored by, 74 German direct trade with China promoted by, 72 ‘limit lists’ (Limit-listen) created by, 69 report to the DAB’s supervisory board, 75 resignation as director of the DAB, 94 Xu Chunrong’s selection as comprador approved by, 81 risks of operating a foreign bank and the fluctuating price of silver, 49, 53, 70, 94, 95, 140, 235, 245 risk-averse business strategy adopted by the DAB, 16, 56, 60, 69–70, 95, 106, 243, 270 the value of traded commodities acting as collateral for bills of exchange as a factor, 69 risks of operating a foreign bank – political risks increased control demanded by the Four Groups, 216 increased financial control demanded by foreign bank representatives in Beijing, 215 role in decisions of representatives of the Four Groups Consortium in Beijing, 207 role in decisions of the bankers and the operations of the DAB, 16 risks of operating a foreign bank – sovereign risk role in decisions of the banks and the operations of the DAB, 16 Russo-Asiatic Bank, 200, 221f5.12 salt revenue
as collateral for railway loan, 176 collection of salt taxes by the Customs Service, 137, 139 reforming of the salt gabelle, 213, 214n104 Salt Administration established according to the Reorganisation Loan agreement, 219 salt lijin. See taxes – lijin 釐金 as security for the Reorganisation Loan, 99 severing of deposits to the DAB for loan and Boxer Indemnity payments owed by the Chinese government, 257 severing of payments to Germany by the Chinese government, 257 Seehandlungsgesellschaft buying and selling of bills of exchange by the DAB backed by, 72 discussions to establish a German bank in China, 48–49, 50, 51 as a payment agent for the second indemnity loan, 130 president of. See Burchard, Franz von as a shareholder in the DAB, 51, 54
Shanghai Exchange Brokers’ Association, 71
Sheehan, Brett, 17
Shenbao
Eggeling interviewed by, 246 Sheng Xuanhuai 盛宣懷 agreement between his Pinghsiang Colliery and the DAB, 233 and Chinese railway development, 157, 159, 160 financial concerns discussed with Yuan Shikai, 205 plan to use railways as collateral for loans developed with Zhang Zhidong, 157, 175 Siemens, Georg von, 28
Sino-French War of 1884/5
China’s growing loan business impacted by, 32
Sino-Japanese War of 1894/5
Chinese gold bonds floated during, 122
Chinese railway construction impacted by, 154 Chinese railway construction in the aftermath of, 154 increase in foreign borrowing and engagement with foreign capital markets following, 2, 13, 54, 112, 268 Treaty of Shimonoseki, 114, 119, 136, 138 war indemnity imposed on China by Japan, 110, 113 war indemnity repayment. See indemnity payments Stent, James, 275
Strange, Susan, 111
structural power of foreign financiers and markets Chinese officials’ challenging of, 111, 118, 131, 139 effect on the Chinese frontier of, 55, 146 Strange’s distinction between ‘relational power’ and ‘structural power’, 111
Sun Yat-sen (Sun Zhongshan 孫中山) foreign financiers approached by, 208, 209 Sun Yat-sen (cont.)
on the need to borrow foreign money, 211 Suzuki Toshio 鈴木俊夫, 8
Tang Shaoyi 唐紹儀 (1862–1938), 166f4.6, 169 ‘realistic’ approach to Chinese railway development of, 161n50, 183n138
background of, 168
loan negotiations for the Tianjin–Pukou railway, 169 Reorganisation Loan negotiations, 212 taxes – lijin 釐金
abolishment of (November 1911), 197 collection by the Customs Service, 137, 139 introduction by the Qing government, 33 pledged as collateral for foreign railway loans, 147n164, 176, 177, 180t4.1 Tianjin
as a Sino-foreign contact zone, 21, 153, 163, 172, 186 Tianjin–Pukou Railway loan, 159, 163 assessment by the Board of Communications (Youchuanbu 郵傳部), 183 Cordes’ negotiations for the DAB, 176, 179 final agreement signed by Cordes, Bland and Liang Dunyan (1908), 179, 180t4.1
preliminary agreement signed (18 May 1899), 160, 180t4.1 transnational networks facilitating negotiations, 172, 186 trade finance. See also internationalization of Chinese finance Germany’s trade with China in the 1890s, 75t2.1
the growth of transnational capital flows supported by, 69, 76, 105 Tianjin as a Sino-foreign contact zone, 163 transnational networks, 14n36n36. See also globalization; internationalization of Chinese finance emergence of transnational elites in Europe and China during the late nineteenth century, 168 as instrumental in meeting common objectives, interests and benefits, 14, 107, 153 negotiations for the Tianjin–Pukou railway agreement facilitated by, 172, 186 physical and social networks distinguished, 14 role of ‘men in the middle’ in contact zones, 152, 153, 168, 175, 186 Sino-British-German network transnational network, 153, 160, 173, 185 transnational flows of capital between Europe and China facilitated by foreign banks in China, 69 weakening of flows of commodities and capital by the First World War, 262, 264, 270 treaty ports cost of capital as an indicator of China’s financial integration with the global economy, 268 dominance of foreign banks in banking sector of, 6 end of transnational cooperation during the First World War, 230, 249, 250, 270 local foreign firms as agents for foreign banks, 242

INDEX

Urbig, Franz (1864–1944), 254, 265 biographical details, 62, 129f3.3
on the DAB’s attempt to use financial means to keep China out of the war, 252–253n76 direct financial help for Yuan rejected by, 207

© in this web service Cambridge University Press & Assessment www.cambridge.org extraterritoriality explained as the key factor allowing the DAB to attract Chinese deposits, 80 on von Simson's concerns about Chinese confiscations of DAB's funds, 251n73
recruitment to join the DAB, 63
van de Ven, Hans, 3
Vinnai, Volker, 32n28 Waiwubu 外務部 (Chinese Ministry of Foreign Affairs), 176–177 Wallich, Hermann, 27f.1 concern about competition for a future bank in China, 55
as an early director of Deutsche Bank, 27
Wang Jingyu 汪敬虞, 5, 6, 78
Wang Wenshao 王文韶, 157, 159 Warschauer group discussions to establish a German bank in China, 51
first Chinese loan issued on the German capital market contracted by (1887), 47, 118 interest in establishing a bank in China, 48–49, 53, 54
rivalry with Frankfurt bank, 47
Wasserstrom, Jeffrey N., 14n39,
107n175, 152n12
Weng Tonghe 翁同龢 (1830–1904), 125f.2
loan negotiations for the second and third indemnity loans, 126, 130, 131, 138, 140
White, Richard
on the frontier as a 'middle ground', 10 Wolff, Hermann, 68f.2.4
recruitment to join the DAB, 63, 65
World War I. See First World War
Wu Peichu 吳培初, 84, 90
Xiong Xiling 熊希齡, 211
Xu Chunrong 許春榮
background of, 83
as comprador for the DAB, 81, 84, 88
Xu family business network, 89–91, 92
Xue Fucheng 薛福成, 36
Yan, Dong, 147
Yokohama Specie Bank (Yokohama Shōkin Ginkō 横浜正金銀行) (YSB)
organizational structure of, 64f.2.2, 65–67
Yuan Shikai 袁世凱 (1859–1916), 162f.3
Chinese railway development influenced by, 161, 161n50, 178, 183n138
death in 1916, 255
as imperial director-general of the Tianjin – Pukou railway, 161
as a military reformer, 161 support requested from the Four Groups Consortium, 207
Yuan Shikai 袁世凱 (1859–1916) – presidency, 209, 210f.5.9, See also Reorganisation Loan
foreign loans needed to finance the
new republican government, 209–211, 214, 222, 225
openness to fiscal reform, 214
support requested from the Four Groups Consortium, 212
Zhang Zhidong 張之洞 (1837–1909),
155f.4
Beijing–Hankou railway line
supported by, 156
loan negotiations initiated with the DAB during the Sino-French War, 37 plan to use railways as collateral for loans developed by, 157, 175 railway development addressed in his quansue pian 勸學篇, 150
Zhou Changling 周長齡, 166, 168 Zhou Fu 周馥 (Chinese Customs circuit intendant [daotai 道臺]), 44
Zhou Xuexi 周學熙 (1866–1947), 219f5.10
background of, 218
the Reorganisation Loan agreement negotiated for the Chinese, 218

Zongli Yamen 總理衙門 (Chinese Ministry of Foreign Affairs) negotiations for the second indemnity loan, 119–121, 123–124, 126–128