HUMAN DIGNITY IN INTERNATIONAL LAW

Over the past two centuries, the concept of human dignity has moved from the fringes to the centre of the international legal system. This book is the first detailed historical, theoretical and legal investigation of human dignity as a normative value, the intellectual sources that shaped its legal recognition, and the main legal instruments used to give it expression in international law. Ginevra Le Moli addresses the broad historical and philosophical developments relating to the legal expression of dignity and the doctrinal geography of human dignity in international law, with a focus on international humanitarian law, international human rights law and international criminal law. The book fills a major lacuna in the literature by providing a comprehensive account of dignity within international law that draws on an extensive documentary and archival basis and a vast body of decisions of international judicial and quasi-judicial bodies.

Ginevra Le Moli is Assistant Professor of International Law at the Grotius Centre for International Legal Studies, Leiden University, and a Fellow of the Cambridge Centre for Environment, Energy and Natural Resources Governance (C-EENRG), University of Cambridge.

The purpose of the ASIL Studies in International Legal Theory series is to clarify and improve the theoretical foundations of international law. Too often the progressive development and implementation of international law has foundered on confusion about first principles. This series raises the level of public and scholarly discussion about the structure and purposes of the world legal order and how best to achieve global justice through law.

This series grows out of the International Legal Theory project of the American Society of International Law. The ASIL Studies in International Legal Theory series deepens this conversation by publishing scholarly monographs and edited volumes of essays considering subjects in international legal theory.

This book is the culmination of many years of research, which started out as a doctoral project in 2015. The guidance I received from my PhD supervisors made the long journey a unique and wonderful experience. The thesis was written under the direction of Professor Andrea Bianchi. I am deeply grateful for his wisdom, sensibility, availability and precious comments. He believed in my idea since the beginning and supported me in finding the road of human dignity and translating its language into international law. Professor Andrew Clapham acted as the second reader of the thesis and encouraged me with enthusiasm from the beginning of my research. His inputs have been vital in shaping this text. I would also like to thank Professor Sarah Nouwen for her support during my stay in Cambridge and for having accepted to be part of my doctoral jury. Her detailed and insightful comments on the dissertation and during the defence have been extremely useful to refine the text for publication.

I am also grateful to all the professors I have had the privilege of meeting and collaborating with over the years. I am especially grateful to Professors Paola Gaeta, Marcelo Kohen and Makane Mbengue, for the many conversations on the fundamental principles of international law and for their encouragement throughout my studies as well as in my first steps as an assistant professor. I also would like to thank Professors Gian Luca Burci, Vincent Chetail, Nico Krisch and Fuad Zaribiye, part of the faculty members of the Graduate Institute, as well as Professors Sarah Cleveland and Shaheed Fatima for their support. I must express an equal sense of gratitude to the wonderful staff of the Lauterpacht Centre for International law, University of Cambridge, for making the last six months of my PhD journey so intellectually stimulating. In particular, thanks to Professor Eyal Benvenisti for his warm welcome and for having shared with me his views on my research.

Through the several years spent in Geneva, a ‘Geneva Family’ of friends formed, to whom I owe a great debt of gratitude. A PhD is supposed to be a lonely and gruelling experience, but having them around made it a brilliant one (only the silent Lac Léman holds memory of long walks and conversations on the masters of philosophy, history and law). This family is now extending to my new intellectual homes in Leiden and Cambridge.

And for having taught me the meaning of humanity, I owe thanks to my family. To their positive energy, to my mother’s courage and enthusiasm, to my father’s unique sense of humour and imagination, to my sister Lucrezia’s friendship and special soul, and to Amedeo, who left us too early but still inhabits a world within this world. I hope at least half of your perseverance and sense of curiosity, on or off stage, found expression in the pages of this manuscript. Lastly, I am grateful to Jorge, for his heart, energy and vision, spiced with constant support.

A heartfelt thank you for being part of my story. Grazie.
