

Contents

Acknowledgments	page ix
Introduction: “Just Words”	I
PART I ELOQUENCE AND THE ANCIENTS
1 “I Tremble with My Whole Heart”: Cicero on the Anxieties of Eloquence	23
1.1 Reconceiving Oratorical Virtus	27
1.2 Uncertainties of Language in Cicero’s De oratore	31
1.3 A “Rational Criterion” for Speech: Caesar’s De analogia	41
1.4 Eloquence and Audience Autonomy	45
2 The Parthenon and the Outhouse: Cicero’s Demosthenes and the Uses of Style	51
2.1 Demosthenes and the Three Styles	53
2.2 The Weight of Decorum	62
2.3 Eloquent Frankness	70
Postscript: Quintilian, Tacitus, and the Problem of Large-Scale Decorum	78
PART II ELOQUENCE AND THE MODERNS
3 Edmund Burke and the Deliberative Sublime	87
3.1 Civility against Eloquence	90
3.2 Burke’s Rhetoric and Its Reception	97
3.3 Language and Sublimity in Burke’s Enquiry	104
3.4 Defective Deliberation and Imaginative Judgment	109
4 Debatable Land: Macaulay, Tocqueville, and the Art of Judgment	118
4.1 Historiography as a Branch of Rhetoric	123
	vii

viii	Contents
4.2	History and Reform: A Judgment-Oriented Politics 126
4.3	Glamorizing Judgment: Macaulay's History of England 134
4.4	Tocqueville against Rhetoric: The Ancien Régime 147
5	Speaking "As If": Carl Schmitt and Rhetoric as Ritual 158
5.1	"The Background of an Imposing Authority": Rhetoric and Representation 160
5.2	Ritual as Subjunctive Action 167
5.3	Rhetoric through the Lens of Ritual 169
5.4	"Again and Again and Again": Ritual and Tragedy 176
	Conclusion: On Not Listening 184
	Bibliography 195
	Index 215