

RELIGION IN SIXTEENTH-CENTURY MEXICO

Religion in Sixteenth-Century Mexico explores the development of religion as transferred from Spain to Tenochtitlan. The religious world of both Aztecs and Spanish Catholics at the time of encounter was organized through large- and small-scale community, family, and personal devotions. Devotion expressed through cults was the single most salient aspect in the transfer of Catholicism to New World people. This book highlights the role that ideas such as afterlife, apocalypticism, iconoclasm, Marianism, resistance, and saints played in the emergence of Mexican Catholicism in the 16th century. The larger Atlantic world context, as seen in the regions of Iberia, Anahuac, and "New Spain," or central Mexico from Zacatecas to Oaxaca, is explored in detail. Beginning with an extensive historical essay to contextualize the pre-contact period, the bulk of this volume contains 118 separate keywords each with three comparative essays examining Aztec and Catholic religious practices before and after contact.

Acknowledgments

Writing a book is the work of a village. Our partners, friends, librarians, and colleagues near and far have all contributed to the completion of this volume, and we are deeply grateful.

For countless hours staring at church ceilings, climbing stone steps at ruin sites, navigating the Mexican countryside in search of adventure, Laura is forever grateful to her partner, Randy. We cannot forget the patience our traveling companions in Mexico 2018 showed as we raced from site to site: Pat Beaver, Robert White, Edwina Smith, Nancy Sigmon, Randy Reed, and Marilyn Smith, we thank you.

For friendship and an unending willingness to listen, Laura wishes to thank Mark Cronan, Melody Mooney, and Ozzie Ostwalt. Much of her research would not have been possible without the support of Evelyn and Michael Cronan, who provided their Los Angeles Condo for Visiting Scholars as sabbatical refuge and writing nook.

Our students, from the study abroad class where this project was first formulated through the Fall 2018, 2019, and 2020 Latin American religions classes, made this a better project with their engaged responses and careful reading. We learned from our students and we are grateful.

For work above and beyond the call of duty with preparing images and investigating copyright, we thank Agnes Gambill, Head of Scholarly Communications, and Adam Sheffield of ASU's Digital Scholarship & Initiatives, both at Appalachian State University Library.

Generous support was also provided by the Department of Philosophy and Religion, the College of Arts and Sciences, and the Appalachian State University Center for Academic Excellence Writer's Retreat.

We thank Molly Bassett and Karen Jo Torjesen for their support very early in the project, listening to the concept, reading our preliminary drafts, and offering thoughtful responses and advice on how to proceed. We turned to Randy Reed's biblical studies knowledge on many occasions. Monica Dominguez Torres provided Figure 50, and she, David Tavárez, Barbara Mundy, Anthony Aveni, Kathryn Renton of the Getty Library, and John Schwaller provided feedback on small sections and took time to answer our questions.

A big part of that village are the scholars of this subject, whose writings are essential and will be for decades to come. We have relied particularly heavily on Louise Burkhart, Elizabeth Boone, Jaime Lara, Inga Clendinnen, and Alfredo López Austin. Robert Ricard was an early influence, as was Karen Bassie-Sweet. Cheryl wants to add thanks to Marilyn Smith for the years they've spent exploring Mexico and for enduring these five years of writing – and all the other writing and library time over the decades. She also wants to thank the clever people who made this research so much easier – the creators of and contributors to wikimedia.
