

Cambridge University Press & Assessment

978-1-316-60435-9 — Management across Cultures Australasian edition

Richard M. Steers , Luciana Nardon , Carlos J. Sanchez-Runde , Adaptation by Ramanie Samaratunge

Subramaniam Ananthram , Di Fan , Ying Lu

Frontmatter

More Information

Management Across Cultures

AUSTRALASIAN EDITION

This first Australasian edition of the popular text Management Across Cultures explores the latest approaches to cross-cultural management, presenting strategies and tactics for managing international assignments and global teams. With a clear emphasis on learning and development, the text encourages students to acquire skills in multicultural competence that will be highly valued by their future employers. As more and more managers find themselves becoming global managers, and in a world where practices and expectations can differ significantly across national and regional boundaries, this has never been more important.

Rich in cases and examples, Management Across Cultures: Australasian Edition integrates research from across the social sciences with contemporary management practices for a comprehensive overview of cross-cultural management. It features:

- a “management challenge” that serves as the basis for each chapter
- learning objectives to focus student learning
- application boxes throughout to illustrate how the concepts under study apply to practice
- a “manager’s notebook” that summarises chapter lessons and their implications for managerial action
- key terms to highlight chapter concepts
- discussion questions that probe both the conceptual and managerial implications
- a case at the end of each chapter that allows students to apply the problem-solving skills learned
- end-of-book case studies that draw together the concepts from a range of chapters.

Additional teaching and learning materials are available on this book’s companion website at www.cambridge.edu.au/academic/management1e.

Richard M. Steers is Professor Emeritus of Organization and Management at the Lundquist College of Business, University of Oregon, USA.

Luciana Nardon is an Associate Professor of International Business at the Sprott School of Business, Carleton University, Canada.

Carlos J. Sanchez-Runde is Professor and Director in the Department of Managing People in Organizations at IESE Business School, University of Navarra, Spain.

Ramanie Samaratunge is Associate Professor in the Monash Business School at Monash University.

Subramaniam Ananthram is Senior Lecturer in international business in the School of Management at Curtin University.

Di Fan is Associate Professor in international business in the School of Management at Curtin University.

Ying Lu is Senior Lecturer in the Department of Marketing and Management at Macquarie University.

Cambridge University Press & Assessment

978-1-316-60435-9 — Management across Cultures Australasian edition

Richard M. Steers , Luciara Nardon , Carlos J. Sanchez-Runde , Adaptation by Ramanie Samaratunge

Subramaniam Ananthram , Di Fan , Ying Lu

Frontmatter

More Information

Management Across Cultures

AUSTRALASIAN EDITION

Richard M. Steers

Luciara Nardon

Carlos J. Sanchez-Runde

Ramanie Samaratunge

Subramaniam Ananthram

Di Fan

Ying Lu

CAMBRIDGE
UNIVERSITY PRESS

Cambridge University Press & Assessment

978-1-316-60435-9 — Management across Cultures Australasian edition

Richard M. Steers , Luciana Nardon , Carlos J. Sanchez-Runde , Adaptation by Ramanie Samaratunge

Subramaniam Ananthram , Di Fan , Ying Lu

Frontmatter

More Information

CAMBRIDGE UNIVERSITY PRESS

University Printing House, Cambridge CB2 8BS, United Kingdom

One Liberty Plaza, 20th Floor, New York, NY 10006, USA

477 Williamstown Road, Port Melbourne, VIC 3207, Australia

314-321, 3rd Floor, Plot 3, Splendor Forum, Jasola District Centre, New Delhi - 110025, India

103 Penang Road, #05-06/07, Visioncrest Commercial, Singapore 238467

Cambridge University Press is part of the University of Cambridge.

It furthers the University's mission by disseminating knowledge in the pursuit of education, learning and research at the highest international levels of excellence.

www.cambridge.org

Information on this title: www.cambridge.org/9781316604359

First edition © Richard M. Steers, Carlos J. Sanchez-Runde and Luciana Nardon 2010

Second and third editions © Richard M. Steers, Luciana Nardon and Carlos J. Sanchez-Runde 2013, 2016

Australasian edition © Cambridge University Press 2017

This publication is in copyright. Subject to statutory exception and to the provisions of relevant collective licensing agreements, no reproduction of any part may take place without the written permission of Cambridge University Press.

First published 2010 by Cambridge University Press UK

Second edition 2013

Third edition 2016

Australasian edition first published 2017 (version 2, May 2019)

Cover designed by Loupe Studio

A Cataloguing-in-Publication entry is available from the catalogue of the National Library of Australia at www.nla.gov.au

ISBN 978-1-316-60435-9 Paperback

Additional resources for this publication at www.cambridge.edu.au/academic/management1e

Reproduction and communication for educational purposes

The Australian Copyright Act 1968 (the Act) allows a maximum of one chapter or 10% of the pages of this work, whichever is the greater, to be reproduced and/or communicated by any educational institution for its educational purposes provided that the educational institution (or the body that administers it) has given a remuneration notice to Copyright Agency Limited (CAL) under the Act.

For details of the CAL licence for educational institutions contact:

Copyright Agency Limited

Level 12, 66 Goulburn Street

Sydney NSW 2000

Telephone: (02) 9394 7600

Facsimile: (02) 9394 7601

E-mail: memberservices@copyright.com.au

Reproduction and communication for other purposes

Except as permitted under the Act (for example a fair dealing for the purposes of study, research, criticism or review) no part of this publication may be reproduced, stored in a retrieval system, communicated or transmitted in any form or by any means without prior written permission. All inquiries should be made to the publisher at the address above.

Cambridge University Press has no responsibility for the persistence or accuracy of URLs for external or third-party internet websites referred to in this publication, and does not guarantee that any content on such websites is, or will remain, accurate or appropriate.

Contents

	List of exhibits	page ix
	Guided tour	xii
1	Management across cultures: an introduction	1
	Management challenge	1
	The changing global landscape	3
	Multicultural competence and managerial success	10
	Manager's Notebook: Developing multicultural competence	12
	Plan of the book	14
	Key terms	15
	Discussion questions	15
	Case: Global training at Google	16
2	Global managers: challenges and responsibilities	20
	Management challenge	20
	Traditional management models	22
	Context of global management	24
	Rethinking management models	28
	Diversity in global assignments	33
	Manager's Notebook: A model for global managers	44
	Key terms	47
	Discussion questions	47
	Case: Two expatriates	48
3	Cultural environments	52
	Management challenge	52
	Culture, socialisation, and normative behaviour	54
	Descriptive models of culture	58
	Culture and institutional environments	66
	Cultural complexities and contradictions	69
	Cultural diversity and multiculturalism	76
	Manager's Notebook: Working across cultures	78
	Key terms	83
	Discussion questions	83
	Case: Anna Håkansson – from Sweden to Bahrain	84

4	Organisational environments	89
	Management challenge	89
	Organisations and environments	90
	Stakeholders and global strategies	92
	Organising for global business	94
	Regional organising models	98
	Control, participation, and decision-making	113
	Corporate culture	118
	Manager’s Notebook: Working with global organisations	124
	Key terms	129
	Discussion questions	129
	Case: Co-determination at Volkswagen	130
5	Communicating across cultures	136
	Management challenge	136
	Interpersonal communication	139
	Cultural screens on interpersonal communication	141
	Culture, cognition, and communication	142
	Culture and communication protocols	152
	Manager’s Notebook: Communicating across cultures	161
	Key terms	166
	Discussion questions	166
	Case: Roos Dekker, Global Healthcare	167
6	Leading global organisations	171
	Management challenge	171
	Dimensions of organisational leadership	173
	Contemporary approaches to cross-cultural leadership	175
	Limitations on contemporary approaches	184
	GLOBE leadership study	187
	Women leaders: challenges and opportunities	192
	Leadership in China and the West	195
	Manager’s Notebook: Leading global organisations	198
	Key terms	201
	Discussion questions	201
	Case: Emerson Electric – Suzhou	203
7	Negotiating global partnerships	207
	Management challenge	207
	Negotiations and global partnerships	209
	Preparing for cross-cultural negotiations	214
	Negotiating strategies and processes	220

	Contents	vii
Managing conflicts and compromise	224
Managing agreements and contracts	227
Manager’s Notebook: Negotiating global partnerships	231
Key terms	234
Discussion questions	234
Case: Perils of being a junior manager	235
8 Managing ethical conflicts	241
Management challenge	241
Conflicts over beliefs and values	243
Conflicts between beliefs and institutional requirements	246
The ethical global leader	249
Ethical guidelines for global managers	251
Manager’s Notebook: Managing ethical conflicts	268
Key terms	273
Discussion questions	273
Case: Energy contracts in Nigeria	274
9 Managing work and motivation	278
Management challenge	278
The world of work	280
Culture and the psychology of work	285
Managing incentives and rewards	290
Gender, compensation, and opportunities	296
Manager’s Notebook: Managing work and motivation	298
Key terms	301
Discussion questions	301
Case: Samsung’s maquiladora plant	303
10 Managing global teams	307
Management challenge	307
Global teams	309
Co-located and dispersed global teams	314
Special challenges of dispersed global teams	315
Managing dispersed global teams	321
Managing tasks and team processes	325
Leadership and global team-building	328
Manager’s Notebook: Managing global teams	333
Key terms	337
Discussion questions	337
Case: IBM Cloud Labs	338

11 Managing global assignments	342
Management challenge	342
Global assignments	345
Challenges of living and working globally	352
Finding your way: coping with culture shock	357
Finding your place: acculturation strategies	366
Managing repatriation	369
Manager’s Notebook: Managing global assignments	372
Key terms	377
Discussion questions	377
Case: Global assignment, Myanmar	378
12 Lessons learned	381
Management challenge	381
What have we learned?	382
Where do we go from here?	388
CASE GRID	395
Case 1: Jack Ma: Lessons in leadership	396
Case 2: New global managers: Dilmah Tea	401
Case 3: Disney’s expansion in Asia	407
Case 4: Culture matters in post-acquisition integration	412
Case 5: Managing merger and acquisition (M&A): Sinosteel in Australia	416
Case 6: An after-hours business dinner in Japan	421
Case 7: Developing cultural competency at IBM	426
Case 8: “We don’t speak the same language”: SEEK in China	431
Case 9: Just another move to Hong Kong?	436
Appendix: Models of national cultures	440
Name index	455
Subject index	458

Exhibits

1.1	The changing global landscape	page 4
1.2	Building global management skills	12
1.3	Stages in developing multicultural competence	14
2.1	Traditional “logic” of organisation and management	23
2.2	Managerial roles	24
2.3	Context of global management	26
2.4	Supervisory roles across cultures	28
2.5	Perceptions of managerial roles	29
2.6	Perceptions of managerial practices	30
2.7	Cultural influences on managerial roles	32
2.8	Challenges of global assignments	35
2.9	A model for global managers	45
3.1	The cultural environment of global management	54
3.2	Culture, personality, and human nature	57
3.3	Popular models of national cultures	60
3.4	Core cultural dimensions	64
3.5	Normative beliefs, institutional requirements, and social control	67
3.6	Cultural complexities and contradictions	73
3.7	Strategies for working across cultures	79
3.8	Hofstede’s cultural dimensions for Bahrain and Sweden	86
4.1	The organisational environment of global management	91
4.2	Global organisation designs	96
4.3	Regional models of organisation	99
4.4	Example of US investor model of organisation	102
4.5	Example of Chinese family model of organisation (gong-si)	108
4.6	Example of Japanese network model of organisation (Kirin Holdings kaisha , Mitsubishi keiretsu)	110
4.7	Example of German mutual benefit organisation (konzern)	113
4.8	Employee participation in organisational decision-making	114
4.9	Decision analysis and implementation speed	116
4.10	Influences on corporate culture	119
4.11	Strategies for working with global organisations	125
4.12	Learning from different organisational models	128
5.1	AIA model of interpersonal communication	140
5.2	Cultural screens on interpersonal communication	142

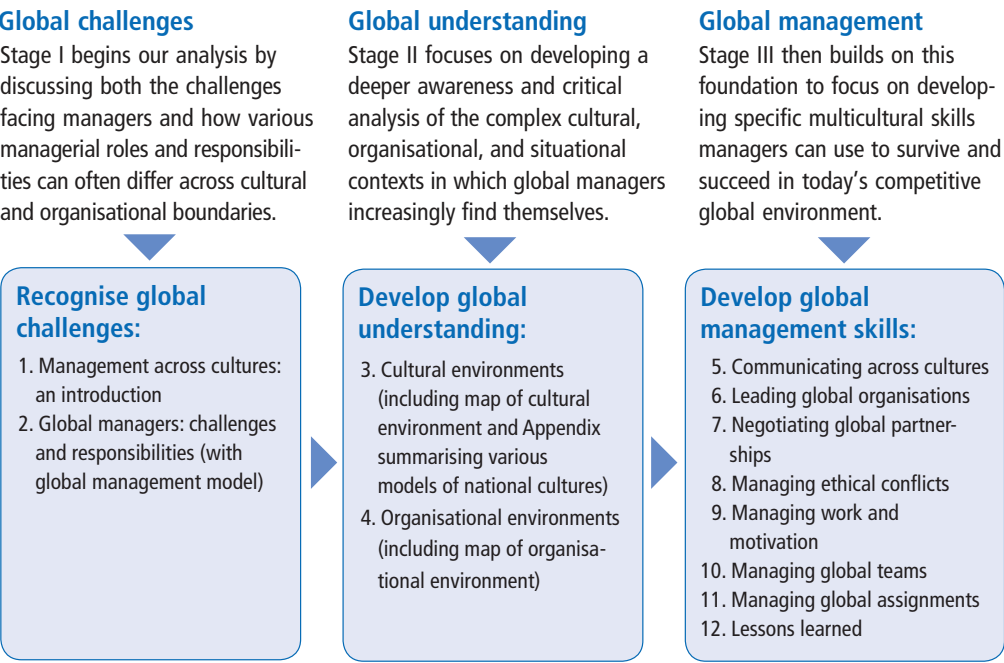

5.3	Culturally mediated cognitions in communication	143
5.4	Native and non-native speakers	147
5.5	Culturally mandated communication protocols	153
5.6	Communication in low- and high-context cultures	156
5.7	Strategies for communicating across cultures	163
6.1	Dimensions of organisational leadership	174
6.2	Contemporary approaches to cross-cultural leadership	176
6.3	Global mindset of effective leaders	179
6.4	GLOBE cultural perspectives on leadership effectiveness	188
6.5	GLOBE leadership dimensions	189
6.6	Cultural beliefs about leadership styles	190
6.7	Percentage of women in senior leadership positions (rank order)	192
6.8	Percentage of board of director's seats held by women	193
6.9	Leadership patterns in China and the West	196
6.10	Strategies for leading global organisations	200
7.1	Benefits and challenges of global partnerships	210
7.2	Preparing for cross-cultural negotiations	215
7.3	Key success factors in cross-cultural partnerships	216
7.4	Competitive and problem-solving negotiation strategies	222
7.5	Examples of competitive and problem-solving negotiation strategies	223
7.6	Sequential and holistic bargaining strategies	224
7.7	Conflict resolution strategies	225
7.8	Contracts and the doctrine of changed circumstances	229
7.9	Strategies for negotiating global partnerships	232
8.1	Sources of ethical conflicts across cultures	244
8.2	Universalism, particularism, and ethical beliefs	245
8.3	Ethical beliefs, institutional requirements, and social control	247
8.4	GLOBE attributes of ethical leaders	250
8.5	OECD guidelines for ethical managerial behaviour	253
8.6	Global Corruption Index	254
8.7	Pressures for and against OECD guideline compliance on bribery and corruption	257
8.8	Strategies for managing ethical conflicts	270
9.1	Culture, work values, and behaviour	281
9.2	Vacation policies in selected countries	283
9.3	Culture and the psychological contract	286
9.4	Gender wage gaps across nations	296
9.5	Strategies for managing work and motivation	300
10.1	Advantages and drawbacks of global teams	311
10.2	Influences on global team synergy	313

10.3	Characteristics of co-located and dispersed global teams	316
10.4	Strategies for managing dispersed global teams	322
10.5	Managing tasks and team processes	326
10.6	Leadership and global team building strategies	329
10.7	Can people be trusted?	331
10.8	Developing mutual trust	332
10.9	Strategies for managing global teams	335
10.10	IBM's dispersed global development team for South Korean bank	339
11.1	Key relationships in living and working globally	344
11.2	Implications of employer-initiated and self-initiated global assignments	346
11.3	Long- and short-term global assignments	347
11.4	Long-term global assignments	348
11.5	Short-term global assignments	351
11.6	Challenges of living and working globally	352
11.7	Family considerations in global assignments	356
11.8	Career considerations in global assignments	357
11.9	Stages in psychological adaptation to a new culture	361
11.10	Strategies for coping with culture shock	364
11.11	Acculturation strategies in local cultures	367
11.12	Influences on acculturation success	369
11.13	Coping strategies of returning expatriates	370
11.14	Strategies for living and working globally	374
12.1	Stages in developing multicultural competence	383
12.2	Cultural, organisational, and situational contexts	384
12.3	Global management skills	385
12.4	Model for global managers	387
12.5	Learning from the past, looking to the future	393
A.1	Kluckhohn and Strodtbeck's cultural dimensions	441
A.2	Hofstede's cultural dimensions	442
A.3	Hall's cultural dimensions	443
A.4	Trompenaars' cultural dimensions	444
A.5	Schwartz's cultural dimensions	445
A.6	GLOBE project's cultural dimensions	446
A.7	Core cultural dimensions	448

Guided tour

Learning strategy for book

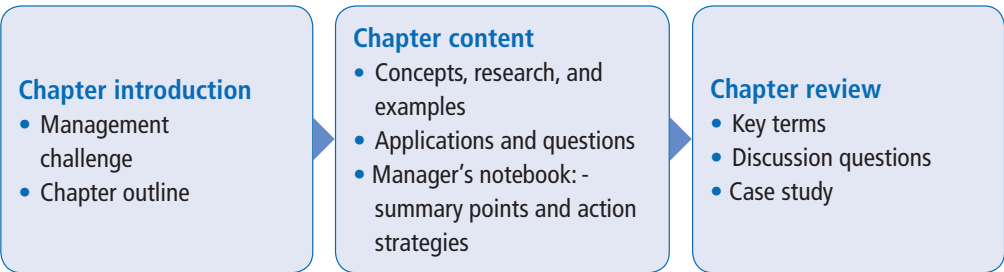

The learning strategy for this book is organised around a 3-stage developmental process:

A global management model is introduced early in the text to guide in the development of critical analysis skills as the book progresses.

Learning strategy for chapters

Each chapter also follows a learning strategy aimed at building bridges between theory and practice using a range of real-world examples, applications, discussion questions, and cases.

Chapter introduction

Each chapter begins by highlighting the management challenges that serve as the basis for the chapter. Chapter outlines organise the text.

Guided tour

xiii

1

Management across cultures: an introduction

MANAGEMENT CHALLENGE

Jeff Bezos's Letter to Shareholders, "A competitive world offers two possibilities. You can lose. Or, if you want to win, you can change." With increasing globalization come increased pressures for both change and competitiveness. Understanding this changing environment is a manager's first challenge. The second is building mutually beneficial interpersonal and multicultural relationships with people in different parts of the world in order to overcome these challenges and take advantage of the opportunities presented by the turbulent global environment. Meanwhile, concerns about ethical behavior and social responsibility surround managerial actions. We suggest here in this introductory chapter that an important key to succeeding in the global business environment is developing sufficient multicultural competence to work and manage productively across cultures.

CHAPTER OUTLINE

• The changing global landscape	page 3
• Multicultural competence and managerial actions	8
• MANAGER'S NOTEBOOK: Developing multicultural competence	9
• Plan of book	12
• Key terms	13
• Discussion questions	13
• Case: Global training at Google	14

During a dinner meeting in Prague between Japanese marketing representative Hiroko Naitani and her Czech host, Jitka Novak, confusion quickly emerged when the Japanese guest went off to find the restroom. She began to open the door to the men's room when her host stopped her: "Don't you see the sign?" Novak asked.

24

Global managers: challenges and responsibilities

of the work being performed (e.g., marketing, production), the location of the interaction (e.g., office, restaurant, country), the relative positions or roles of the people involved (e.g., superior, subordinate), and so forth.

This is the complex and often contradictory environment in which global managers find themselves and must work to succeed. Each element of this contextual environment is important and each can exhibit considerable variability. The question now is how to put these three contexts of the work environment together to better understand both the managerial challenge, as well as what managers can actually do in the field. Although global managers obviously face a number of demands and constraints in the workplace, they also have a number of opportunities. The challenge is to understand how these can be realized.

APPLICATION 2.1 What is a supervisor?

To see just one example of differences in the contexts that managers face, consider how people in different cultures view the role of supervisors. What does this term mean? What does it conjure up in people's minds? In English, the word "supervisor" carries with it connotations of authority, control, and power; a supervisor is a boss (see Exhibit 2.4). In Japanese, by contrast, the word often assumes a more familial connotation; a supervisor is a senior role model and protector of subordinates, much like parents. Indeed, kachō in Japanese means "supervisor" (or, more accurately, "section chief"), but it also means "patriarch" or "family head." In German, the word "supervisor" carries strong connotations of technical competence and expertise. Indeed, a supervisor is sometimes referred to as meister (or master technician). German supervisors are generally chosen for their knowledge, technical competence (technik in German) and training abilities, and not necessarily for their ability to control others. In Mexico, a supervisor is considered to be a patron, looking after the interests of his or her employees in exchange for allegiance and obedience (capataz or jefe). Same word, basically, but very different meanings – and sometimes very different behavioral consequences, think about it.

- (1) What are the implications of these different meanings for the supervisory role in the workplace and for those who report to supervisors? Explain.
(2) What is your personal definition of "supervisor"? Whose did your definition come from? How did it develop?
(3) If you were assigned to meet with several supervisors from, say, Turkey or Malaysia, how would you learn about the supervisory role in those locations prior to your meeting?

Chapter content

The text brings together what we currently know—and, in some cases, what we don't know—about the problems global managers may face in the field and the global skills they require to survive and succeed. These materials are based on current theory and research.

Applications are interspersed throughout each chapter to illustrate how concepts under study apply in practice. Application questions encourage students to develop an understanding of what managers did in particular situations and how they might have done it better.

Manager's notebooks summarise chapter lessons and their implications for managerial action.

30

Global managers: challenges and responsibilities

- (2) Jengler spends a lot of time interacting with her colleagues across the globe, but very little time face-to-face with people. What do you think the challenges are of interacting mostly through technology?
(3) While we know very little about this case, speculate about what Jengler's life might look like in five or ten years. What might be different? What might be the same?

Once again, it is important to remember that these three categories of global managers – expatriates, frequent flyers, and virtual managers – represent overlapping categories. Clearly, most expatriates today are heavy users of the Web and other communication technologies, while many virtual managers must travel at times to get their jobs done. Our purpose in differentiating between these three categories, even in terms of general trends, is to highlight differences in managerial responsibilities and challenges in doing business across national borders.

MANAGER'S NOTEBOOK

A model for global managers

In this chapter, we learned that what differentiates effective global managers is not so much their managerial skills – important though these obviously are – but the combination of these skills with additional multicultural competencies that allow people to apply their managerial skills across a diverse spectrum of environments. In other words, global management skills = managerial competencies + multicultural competencies. Being multiculturally competent is more than just being polite or empathetic to people from other cultures; it is getting things done through people by capitalizing on cultural diversity.

Based on what we learned, we have one more topic to discuss: how to build a model of global management that can support managers' efforts to understand, plan, and act in foreign environments. Any useful model guiding managerial behavior in uncertain arenas such as the global marketplace must recognize at least two challenges. First, managers must understand their environment. What must they know or do? What must they not do? Where are the opportunities? And how much discretion do they have in making resource decisions or taking concrete action? Second, managers must have (or develop) the requisite skills and abilities to pursue their goals and objectives within the constraints of their immediate environments. Without these skills, opportunities are easily missed.

14

Management across cultures: an introduction

8. What does Abby Perry Barrett mean when he says that global managers are made, not born beyond the obvious implications for training? Is there a developmental process at work here?

9. In your view, what are the key challenges facing global managers in the coming decade? How can they prepare for these challenges?

10. In view of the complexity of the global environment, it is suggested here that a three-stage approach to developing multicultural competence may be useful (see Exhibit 1.5). What are the potential advantages and drawbacks of using such a model?

CASE: GLOBAL TRAINING AT GOOGLE

A "google" is a number followed by 100 zeros. It is a huge number, and, metaphorically, it captured the imagination of the founders of the company. They sought to build a nexus where millions and millions of people could cross paths. To accomplish this operationally, however, the company required a global reach and international expertise. This endeavor can be seen in a number of actions, but particularly in the company's global training program.

The example of Google's traveling managers illustrates how this company, and many others, search to find unique ways to educate their managers about both the global challenges facing them and the strategies that can help them succeed. To train a new generation of managers, search giant Google is now sending its young "trainees" on a worldwide mission.¹⁰ One recent group of trainees began their journey in a small village outside Bangalore. There were no computers in the tiny village, only unpaved roads surrounded by open fields in which elephants roamed and tumbled local crops at will. The visit was aimed at educating Google associate product managers about the humble, unadorned ways of life experienced by billions of people around the world. Discussions with local villagers began awkwardly, as the managers discovered that the villagers had never heard of the company. As one young manager noted, the experience brought "a whole new meaning to what's on the back of [my] shirt," referring to a T-shirt with the company logo in front and, on the back, the now classic phrase from the company's home page: "I'm feeling lucky."

On their first day in Bangalore the visitors went to the Commercial Street shopping district for a hawking competition. Each Google manager was given 500 rupees (about $13) to spend on "items that don't suck," with a prize given to the one who attained the highest discount on the purchase. For most, it was the first time they had to bargain with street vendors. "I usually shop at 'Mama Market,'" observed one manager, after she bargained the price of a necklace down from 375 rupees to 250. It was one of her colleagues who won the competition, however.

Chapter review

Key terms highlight chapter concepts for purposes of review, while discussion questions probe both the conceptual and managerial implications of the materials under study.

Each chapter concludes with a case study for applying the problem-solving skills learned.

End of book cases

The book concludes with a selection of nine cases that collectively draw upon material covered in each chapter. These cases can be used to explore a number of different concepts in the one case example.

END OF BOOK CASES
Case Grid

Case	Chapter
	1	2	3	4	5	6	7	8	9	10	11	12
1. Jack McLeans in leadership	✓	✓		✓	✓	✓						✓
2. New Global Managers: Ethical Tea									✓	✓	✓	✓
3. Disney's expansion in Asia	✓	✓	✓	✓	✓
4. Culture matters in post-merger integration	✓	✓	✓	✓	✓
5. Managing Mergers and Acquisitions (M&A): Sitewest in Australia				✓	✓
6. An after-Asian business dinner in Japan				✓	✓							✓
7. Developing cultural competency in HR	✓	✓		✓					✓	✓		✓
8. "We don't speak the same language": M&A in China					✓	✓		✓	✓	✓		✓
9. Just another case to bring home?						✓	✓	✓	✓	✓

Learning strategy online

Instructors can access a comprehensive set of 600 downloadable PowerPoint slides online at www.cambridge.edu.au/academic/management1e. These slides are designed to review the materials covered in each chapter, including key concepts, chapter applications, manager's notebooks, end-of-chapter discussion questions, and cases.

An online instructional resources package is also available to instructors that includes suggestions for use of in-text materials and PowerPoint slides; web links to author-recommended videos, cases, exercises, and simulations; team problem-solving activities; and supplemental downloadable global management cases and exercises by the authors.

Suggested responses to End of Book Cases are also available for instructors.