

[xxxvii]

CONTENTS

| | PAGE |
|-------------------|------|
| PREFACE | v |

INTRODUCTION

EXALTATION OF PATRIOTIC SENTIMENT UNDER
THE PRESSURE OF INVASION, 1792–1814.

| | |
|---|----|
| § 1. The Country in Danger. Decree of July 8, 1792 | 1 |
| § 2. The Religion of Patriots. | |
| (a) A Republican Confession of Faith. J.-P. Rabaut | 4 |
| (b) A Republican Prayer. Anon. | 6 |
| § 3. The call to discipline in the service of Liberty. | |
| André Chénier | 7 |
| § 4. Reply to foreign insolence. Giuseppe Gorani | 9 |
| § 5. Republican patriotism as expressed by | |
| (a) A simple civilian. Anon. | 14 |
| (b) Two volunteer soldiers. Sergent Fricasse | 17 |
| F.-X. Joliclerc | 21 |
| (c) An officer of the ancien régime . | |
| Général Deprez-Crassier | 24 |
| § 6. The Nation under arms. The Summons. Danton | 27 |
| § 7. The Nation under arms. A Sea Fight, June 1, 1794. | |
| Moreau de Jonnés | 31 |
| § 8. Three Maxims for Patriots. Lazare Carnot | |
| (a) "Pay equal heed to public safety and to the rights of others." | 45 |
| (b) "Do not wage war for conquest only." | 48 |
| (c) "Be true to your own." | 49 |

FIRST EPOCH, 1813–1818

FALL OF THE EMPIRE. INVASION. THREE REVOLUTIONS
IN FIFTEEN MONTHS. PATRIOTISM PUT TO THE TEST.

CHAPTER I

DECAY OF PATRIOTISM IN THE ARMY, 1813–1814.

| | PAGE |
|--|------|
| § 9. Duty towards the Country. Stendhal | 52 |
| § 10. An Association of republican soldiers. Anon. | 54 |
| § 11. Glory preferred before Country. Comte Roederer | 56 |
| § 12. Decay of patriotism in the high command. Général Thiébauld | 58 |
| § 13. Chivalry sapped by War of Conquest. Commandant Vivien | 61 |
| § 14. Chivalry fostered by common suffering, 1813. Sergent Bourgogne | 64 |

CHAPTER II

REPUBLICAN SENTIMENT IN THE COUNTRY, 1813–1814.

| | |
|---|----|
| § 15. Survival of republican patriotism. Comte Beugnot | 70 |
| § 16. Imperialism loses favour. Comte Miot de Melito | 75 |
| § 17. Patriotism undermined by Imperialism. | |
| (a) Aimée de Coigny | 76 |
| (b) Comtesse de Boigne | 77 |
| § 18. The Spirit of Conquest criticized. Benjamin Constant | 78 |
| § 19. Love of Liberty waxing cold. Mme de Staël | 82 |
| § 20. Effect of Imperialism on individual consciences. Edgar Quinet | 84 |

CONTENTS

xxxix

CHAPTER III

CLASH BETWEEN POPULAR ASPIRATIONS
AND THE SOVEREIGN'S WILL.

| | PAGE |
|--|------|
| § 21. Napoleon and the Nation, Dec. 1813—Jan. 1814 | |
| (a) Waning confidence. Baron Étienne Pasquier | 87 |
| (b) Efforts at recovery. " " | 89 |
| (c) The Report of the Corps Législatif. Lainé | 91 |
| (d) The Emperor's reply. Napoléon | 93 |

CHAPTER IV

THE INVASION: PARIS OCCUPIED BY THE ALLIES:
REVIVAL OF PATRIOTISM, 1814.

| | |
|--|-----|
| § 22. Country before Dynasty. Lazare Carnot | 95 |
| § 23. Self-immolation of the National Guard. Général Philippe de Ségur | 97 |
| § 24. Indignation in the Provinces. Edgar Quinet | 99 |
| § 25. Impotence in Paris. Béranger | 104 |
| § 26. Awakening of Patriotism in the upper classes. Comtesse de Boigne | 108 |
| § 27. The Wounded Heart of France. Mme de Staël | 114 |

CHAPTER V

THE NEW FLAG AND THE NEW COCKADE.
DOUBTS AND PERPLEXITIES.

| | |
|---|-----|
| § 28. Who recalled the Bourbons to the throne? Comte Beugnot | 117 |
| § 29. Feeling of relief in the provinces at the fall of Napoleon expressed by | |
| (a) a civilian. Edmond Géraud | 120 |
| (b) a soldier. Colonel Pion des Loches | 125 |
| § 30. The Royal Entry. Humiliation of the Army. Vicomtesse de Chateaubriand | 128 |

| xl | CONTENTS | PAGE |
|--|--|-------------------|
| § 31. | Three appeals of the Provisional Government. | 129 |
| § 32. | A Case of Conscience: Maréchal Marmont . Comtesse de Boigne | 132 |
| § 33. | April 12, 1814. "Un Français de plus." Comte Beugnot | 139 |
| § 34. | Fluctuations of Patriotism in a liberal family. (a) Charles de Rémusat (b) Mme de Rémusat | 143 144 |
| CHAPTER VI | | |
| THE FIRST RESTORATION, APRIL, 1814—MARCH, 1815. NATIONAL PRIDE AFFRONTED. | | |
| § 35. | The old wine-skins and the new wine. Baron de Vitrolles | 146 |
| § 36. | Caste and Coterie. The "Pavillon de Marsan." (a) Comte Beugnot (b) Comtesse de Boigne | 150 152 |
| § 37. | Danger of reaction. An English Admiral's warning. Baron Hyde de Neuville | 153 |
| § 38. | The need of a national spirit in France: Contrast with England. Lazare Carnot | 155 |
| CHAPTER VII | | |
| DREAMS OF RECONSTRUCTION. | | |
| § 39. | A new Europe founded on an Anglo-French alliance, April, 1815. H. Saint-Simon and Augustin Thierry | 160 |
| CHAPTER VIII | | |
| THE DRAMA OF THE HUNDRED DAYS: PERPLEXITIES OF PATRIOTISM. | | |
| § 40. | Persistence of feudal loyalty to the person of the Prince. (a) Maréchal Davout (b) Général Drouot (c) Général Cambronne | 166 167 168 |

| CONTENTS | | xli |
|---|---------------------------------------|------|
| | | PAGE |
| § 41. Affection of soldiers and peasants. | G. Gley | 171 |
| § 42. The three acts of the tragedy described by a servant of Napoleon. | Comte de Lavalette | 172 |
| § 43. Napoleon a bulwark against the foreigner. | | |
| | (a) Benjamin Constant | 184 |
| | (b) Charles Baudin | 187 |
| | (c) An anonymous Imperialist | 189 |
| § 44. Wavering allegiance: Prefects and Generals. | | |
| | (a) Baron de Barante | 192 |
| | (b) Maréchal Macdonald | 193 |
| § 45. Can a patriotic Republican serve the Emperor? | Lazare Carnot | 197 |
| § 46. Patriotism of the Federations. | Anonymous | 200 |
| § 47. After Waterloo: | | |
| (a) Exultation in the Court at Ghent. | Vicomte de Reiset | 204 |
| (b) The English conqueror congratulated. | Comte de Blacas | 205 |
| § 48. After Waterloo: soldiers' unshaken patriotism. | | |
| | (a) General Drouot | 206 |
| | (b) Colonel (Maréchal) Bugeaud | 208 |
| | (c) Maréchal Davout | 210 |
| § 49. The Grand Army disbanded. | Comtesse de Boigne | 211 |

CHAPTER IX

THE SECOND RESTORATION, JUNE, 1815—JULY, 1830:
NATIONAL HUMILIATION.

| | | |
|--|-----------------------------|-----|
| § 50. Bourbon and foreigner in Paris. The Pont d'Iéna. | Comte Beugnot | 213 |
| § 51. Devotion to duty: Général Daumesnil at Vincennes, October, 1815. | Comte de Rochecouart | 218 |
| § 52. The terms of Peace: France accepts the inevitable. | Duc de Richelieu | 221 |

| xlii | CONTENTS | PAGE |
|---|-------------------------------|------|
| § 53. The returning Émigrés: antique loyalty. | | |
| | Vicomte de Castelbajac | 223 |
| § 54. The call of Duty in 1815. | Népomucène Lemerrier | 223 |
| § 55. Divided opinions in the working classes, 1815. | | |
| (a) Fall of the Tricolour. | Agricol Perdiguier | 225 |
| (b) The fortunes of a white cockade. | ,, | 226 |
| § 56. The treatment of Napoleon's veterans. | | |
| | Capitaine Coignet | 227 |
| § 57. Flowers of legitimist patriotism in "la Chambre introuvable." | | |
| (a) | Baron Hyde de Neuville | 232 |
| (b) | M. Delbrel D'Escorbiac | 233 |
| (c) | Marquis de Puyvert | 233 |
| § 58. An appeal to the foreigner: "La note secrète." | | |
| | Baron de Vitrolles | 234 |
| § 59. The cup of humiliation. | | |
| (a) | Duc de Richelieu | 237 |
| (b) | Béranger | 239 |
| § 60. The youth of France protest. August, 1818. | | |
| | N.-A. de Salvandy | 240 |
| § 61. Poets sing the Country freed from the foreigner. | | |
| (a) | Casimir Delavigne | 245 |
| (b) | Béranger | 246 |

SECOND EPOCH, 1818–1830

THE STRUGGLE TO PRESERVE LIBERTY. THE REVELATION
OF THE UNITY OF FRANCE THROUGH HER HISTORIANS.

CHAPTER X

WANING OF MILITARISM.

| | | |
|---|-----------------------------------|-----|
| § 62. (a) The new army not professional but national. | | |
| | Maréchal Gouvion Saint-Cyr | 248 |
| (b) France free from a military caste of officers. | | |
| | Royer-Collard | 251 |
| § 63. Imperial patriotism derided and rejected. | | |
| (a) | Joseph Berchoux | 254 |
| (b) | Abbé de Montgaillard | 255 |

CONTENTS xliii

CHAPTER XI

THE MYTH OF THE TWO RACES IN FRANCE.

| | PAGE |
|--|------|
| § 64. Its statement in song and pamphlet. | |
| (a) Béranger | 258 |
| (b) P.-L. Courier | 259 |
| § 65. Its explanation: | |
| (a) In a historical statement. Augustin Thierry | 260 |
| (b) By a parable (Jacques Bonhomme). „ | 263 |

CHAPTER XII

THE SPIRITUAL UNIFICATION OF FRANCE WROUGHT
BY THE GREAT HISTORIANS.

| | |
|---|-----|
| § 66. The permanent character of the Nation. | |
| P.-E. Lemontey | 269 |
| § 67. The special character of French civilization. | |
| Guizot | 272 |
| § 68. The story of the historians' achievement told by one of them twenty years later. | |
| Augustin Thierry | 274 |

CHAPTER XIII

LIBERAL PATRIOTISM, 1820–1825.

| | |
|---|-----|
| § 69. The Patriot as orator and scholar. | |
| (a) The lilies on the tricolour. Chambre des députés, February 7, 1821. Général Foy | 278 |
| (b) "The citizen army." Chamber, May 25, 1821. Général Foy | 279 |
| (c) "The example of Demosthenes." March 20, 1823. Général Foy | 281 |

CHAPTER XIV

THE INSTINCT OF THE NATION. 1823–1830.

| | |
|--|-----|
| § 70. The Spanish War provides the touchstone. | |
| (a) In the Chamber of Deputies. Royer-Collard | 285 |
| (b) In the House of Peers. Duc de Broglie | 288 |

| xliv | CONTENTS | PAGE |
|-------|---|------|
| § 71. | Revival of revolutionary and imperial patriotism in the Opposition, 1821–1825. | |
| (a) | The Emperor dead and forgotten. Comtesse de Boigne | 289 |
| (b) | His memory rekindled by his glory. Béranger | 290 |
| (c) | Republican patriotism reawakens. Thibaudeau | 291 |
| § 72. | The patriotism of the National . | |
| (a) | Reply to The Times . Armand Carrel | 293 |
| (b) | The Expedition to Algiers. „ | 295 |
| (c) | Who won the victory in Africa? „ | 297 |

CHAPTER XV

THE REVOLUTION OF 1830. THE LAST OF THE LILIES.
THE “TROIS GLORIEUSES.”

| | | |
|-------|--|-----|
| § 73. | Farewell to the lilies. | |
| (a) | At the Invalides, July 29 and 30, 1830. Général d'Hautpoul | 300 |
| (b) | At Cherbourg, August 15, 1830. Pierre Zédé | 304 |
| § 74. | The Patriots of the “Trois Glorieuses.” | |
| (a) | Comtesse de Boigne | 305 |
| (b) | Victor Hugo | 307 |
| § 75. | “My country, right or wrong.” Duc de FitzJames | 309 |

CHAPTER XVI

FRANCE OLD AND NEW, IN THE LIGHT OF THE “ÉCLAIR DE JUILLET.”

| | | |
|--------------------------------|--|-----|
| § 76. | Patriotism founded on a philosophy of history. Jules Michelet | 311 |
| § 77. | A page of History inspired by the Revolution of July. Jules Michelet | 315 |
| BIOGRAPHICAL NOTICES | | 319 |