

Jurisprudence

Third edition

The third edition of Jurisprudence offers a logically structured, comprehensive, well-researched and accessible overview of legal theory and philosophy. Written primarily for undergraduate students, it examines and demystifies the discipline's major ideas and promotes a richer understanding of the social, moral and economic dimensions of the law. By locating the major traditions of jurisprudence within the history of ideas, the author deepens students' understanding of the perennial debates about the nature and function of law and its relation to justice.

Fully revised and updated, this edition offers new materials on all topics, including:

- discussions of the legal philosophy of the School of Salamanca
- the revival of theological natural law
- Kant's theory of natural rights
- common law's cross-pollination with natural rights theory
- Foucault's theory of concealed power
- further thoughts on Plato and Hegel
- public choice theory
- insights from modern psychology.

Retaining the engaging prose style it is known for, Suri Ratnapala's Jurisprudence remains an essential text for students and researchers of jurisprudence and legal theory.

Anura Surindra (Suri) Ratnapala is Emeritus Professor of Public Law at the T C Beirne School of Law, University of Queensland.

Acknowledgements

This book owes its birth and life to my engagement with the field of legal theory and philosophy during three decades of teaching university classes and advising doctoral candidates, principally at the T C Beirne School of Law of the University of Queensland. There is nothing more challenging in law teaching than exciting the curiosity and enthusiasm of professionally focused students for abstract reasoning, philosophical rumination and moral meditation. If the teacher succeeds it makes their task harder as excited students pose tougher questions. Every which way, teaching causes learning. So my first intellectual debt is to the generations of admirable students of jurisprudence at the University of Queensland who kept me honest.

My second, but by no means lesser, debt is to the University of Queensland, in particular to the T C Beirne School of Law and its Dean Professor, Sarah Derrington. The university appointed me a Professor Emeritus on retirement; this continues my access to its extensive physical and electronic resources and the companionship of outstanding scholars, not to mention free parking on its scenic campus! Professor Derrington's unstinting support of my research and teaching efforts over the years has been one of my great assets. The other has been the support of my colleagues at the Centre for Public, International and Comparative Law, especially its senior Fellows, Professors Reid Mortensen, Jennifer Corrin, Ann Black, James Allan, Anthony Cassimatis, Nicholas Aroney, Graeme Orr and Jonathan Crow who are ever generous with their time, counsel and friendship.

The research leading to this edition was supported by a generous Fellowship of the International Centre for Economic Research at the University of Turin whose Director Professor Enrico Colombatto has been an inspiration over many years in the fields of economic science and history.

I am grateful to the Senior Commissioning Editor Lucy Russell for inviting and encouraging me to embark on this edition, and to the Development Editor Emily Thomas and Project Editor Alison Dean for steering me with gentle firmness to the timely completion of the work. Likewise, I owe sincere thanks to the book's excellent copy editor, Joy Window.

This kind of labour cannot be undertaken without the love and support of family to whom I owe the greatest debt.
