

CONTENTS

	PAGE
When did Congregationalism emerge? . . . . .	1
Preparation—Abroad (Frankfort) and At Home (Secret Meetings) . . . . .	1
Insistence upon Uniformity produces Nonconformity . . . . .	3
The Problem for Puritans—To leave the Church or remain in it? . . . . .	4
The Plumbers' Hall Congregation . . . . .	6
“Pattenson,” a Separatist preacher . . . . .	8
Traces of other congregations . . . . .	9
The Congregation in the Goldsmith's house, March, 1568 . . . . .	10
William Bonham and Nicholas Crane . . . . .	11
Was the Plumbers' Hall Congregation Separatist? . . . . .	13
Separatists sent to Scotland . . . . .	15
Their relations with John Knox . . . . .	16
Thomas Lever and Separatist prisoners . . . . .	19
Evidence indicating existence of several Congregations . . . . .	20
A Congregation with a Covenant . . . . .	22
The Community from which this Congregation seceded—minister, John Browne . . . . .	24
Congregations so far disclosed . . . . .	26
John Browne (and “the Brownings”)—sometimes confused with Robert Browne . . . . .	27
The Duchess of Suffolk . . . . .	28
The Connexion of the Duchess and of John Browne with the English Church at Frankfort . . . . .	29
Browne associated with both Puritans and Separatists . . . . .	29
Richard Fitz's Congregation . . . . .	31
Three Papers relating thereto . . . . .	32
Analysis of the names of its members . . . . .	34
John Nasshe's “Articles” . . . . .	36
“The Separatist Covenant of Richard Fitz's Congregation” . . . . .	37
Its Recurrence . . . . .	37
Was Fitz's a real Congregational Church? . . . . .	38
How it anticipated Robert Browne . . . . .	40
The Persistence of the Covenant . . . . .	43
The Number of the Separatists . . . . .	44
Degrees of Separation . . . . .	46
Later Brownists (and their opponents) place their origin in Fitz's time Fitz's Congregation, the First Congregational Church . . . . .	46 47
The name Brownists . . . . .	48
INDEX . . . . .	49